Two huge signs drape the face of the Statue of Liberty. They were hung by members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, protesting the loss of education benefits of the GI Bill. After an 18-hour siege, the National Park Service police arrested 15 veterans Wednesday.

Shrugs off Brown plea 'not to say it'

HHH concedes Carter all but certain winner

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert Humphrey's presidential dream has all but vanished in the dust left by Jimmy Carter's speeding bandwagon.

As declared candidates and favorite sons were embracing Carter as the peoples' choice, the Happy Warrior conceded Wednesday that the grueling primary race for the Democratic nomination had brought Carter almost certain victory.

But Humphrey couldn't quite bring himself to abandon his quest for the presidency without some qualification.

In a statement Wednesday, Humphrey said Carter "is virtually certain to be our party's nominee. I, therefore, will not authorize any presidential activity on my behalf."

It was not likely to rank with General Sherman's declaration that he would not seek the nomination and if nominated would not run.

For 26 years, Humphrey has dreamed of becoming president. Twice he has been at the brink, as vice president for four years under Lyndon Johnson, and as his party's nominee after Johnson withdrew in 1968, when he lost by a narrow margin to Richard Nixon.

Even this year, when the 65-year-old Minnesota senator chose to sit out the five-month primary campaigns, he left no doubt about his desire to be president.

"I'm available," Humphrey would frequently admit, saying he was prepared to run if the Democratic convention turned to him. Humphrey pointedly omitted that rejoinder from Tuesday's statement.

Rather than bow out Sherman-style, Humphrey simply pointed out the reality of the situation.

"For many months I have said that I would wait the end of the primary election period before deciding whether I would enter the race or be available for the Democratic presidential nomination," Humphrey said.

"I have stated that I would seek the nomination only in the event that there was no clear front runner following the final three primaries in California, New Jersey and Ohio.

"The primaries now are over and Gov. Carter has a commanding lead. He is virtually certain to be our party's nominee."

Shortly before he issued the statement, Humphrey talked by phone with Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. of California who has vowed to stay in the race for the nomination.

A source close to Humphrey said Brown asked the senator not to say that Carter was virtually certain to get the nomination. Brown argued that such a statement would damage his candidacy, but Humphrey refused to delete it.

After Humphrey read his statement, he refused to answer questions.

"I want to say what I want to say and not louse it up with my ad libs, which I'm prone to do," he said.

But when asked what he would tell his 64.5 delegates to do, Humphrey threw up his hands and said, "whatever they wish to do."

Even as his prospects for another presidential race were fading, another political goal loomed on Humphrey's horizon.

He is considering seeking the post of Senate Majority Leader, a job being vacated by the retirement of Mike Mansfield.

Soviet spies making major efforts to get F16 secrets

Penetration through NATO nations feared by Pentagon chiefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet spies in Western Europe reportedly are making major efforts to get secret information on the new U.S. F16 fighter plane and advanced computer technology from NATO nations.

U.S. intelligence sources indicate they learned this after two Soviet KGB agents, masquerading as trade officials, were expelled from The Netherlands in April.

Sources said Gennadiy Burmistrov operated under the guise of an aviation export specialist with a Soviet trade mission in Amsterdam, but actually had a high-priority mission of obtaining data on the F-16 which The Netherlands and three other NATO nations are buying.

There was no indication as to whether Burmistrov succeeded in his mission before being expelled from The Netherlands.

Vladimir Khlystov, described as another Soviet intelligence agent, ostensibly was financial director of a joint Soviet-Dutch computer firm until a Dutch employe reportedly became suspicious of certain activities, including the copying of computer information and sending it to the Soviet Union.

The F16 is believed by U.S. intelligence officials to be a prime target of Soviet spy efforts because the new plane promises to become a major weapon for NATO alliance nations.

A consortium of The Netherlands, Belgium, Denmark and Norway decided a year ago to buy a total of 348 F-16's to replace older planes in their air forces. The U.S. Air Force plans to buy 650 of the new air combat fighters and has said it intends to deploy a large number of those planes for the defense of Western Europe.

The U.S. deal with the four NATO countries involved an agreement that substantial production of F16 engines and other parts, and assembly of many of the fighters, would be performed in Europe, mainly in the Netherlands and Belgium.

Because of this, significant amounts of U.S. aircraft and weapons technology will be transferred to the European consortium.

This, in turn, means that the F16 program in Europe is potentially vulnerable to penetration by Soviet intelligence, U.S. sources said.

Pentagon officials are especially concerned about safeguarding computer technology because they believe this is one area in which the U.S. has a clear lead over the Soviet Union.

A special Pentagon task force recommended last March that any allied nation "that allows (critical military-related) technology to be passed to any Communist country should be prohibited from receiving strategic knowhow."

Carter feels running mate only question left in race

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter, relaxing in work clothes and boots at home in Georgia, said 17 months of campaigning across the country assured him the Democratic presidential nomination.

The choice of a running mate is the only remaining question, he said at a news conference Wednesday, and that decision he won't make in haste.

"There's going to be a lot of speculation, but no one is authorized to speak for me," said the former Georgia governor, now that the focus has begun to shift to the No. 2 spot on the Democratic ticket.

But meeting with reporters at the railroad depot which has served as his local campaign headquarters, Carter said pledges of support after the most recent primaries gave him the 1,505 votes needed to be nominated next month in New York.

Carter said Alabama Gov. George Wallace and Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington both promised to support him and to ask delegates pledged to them to do the same.

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, who controls 86 Illinois delegates, also gave his endorsement and Carter said Daley "will support me, recruit his delegates to support me and work throughout the nation to have me elected next fall," Carter said.

"So you're already over the top?" he was asked.

"That's the way I feel," Carter replied.

Carter said Wallace called him Wednesday morning. "He congratulated me. He said he was very proud of the success.

END OF AN ERA

James A. Farley, right, sits beside a hat-waving President Franklin D. Roosevelt after watching the Washington Senators play in Washington, D.C. in April, 1940. Farley, former postmaster general and political mastermind who engineered Roosevelt's rise to the presidency, died Wednesday night in New York. He was 88.

Jim Farley, brains behind FDR's rise to presidency, dead at 88

NEW YORK (AP) — James A. "Big Jim" Farley, elder statesman of the Democratic party who engineered Franklin D. Roosevelt's rise to the presidency in the 1930s, then broke with FDR over the issue of a third term, is dead at 88.

Farley, onetime Democratic national chairman and FDR's postmaster general for more than seven years, suffered a heart attack Wednesday night in his suite at the Waldorf Towers, where he lived alone.

Hotel security officers found Farley, who suffered a previous attack in 1972, lying across his bed after a maid notified them she was unable to get into the suite to turn down the bed. He was wearing tuxedo pants and a formal shirt.

Farley's death came just hours after he had learned of the passing of Lawrence W. "Chip" Robert Jr., a long-time Roosevelt friend and supporter, in Atlanta. Farley said he was "shocked and saddened" at Robert's death.

"Jim Farley was a great American and a great Democrat and a dear and cherished friend of mine," Robert Strauss, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said in Washington.

Strauss said he had told Farley a few days ago he planned to name him chairman emeritus of the Democratic party at the national convention in New York City next month.

Farley, who stood 6-feet-2½, was a master political organizer who combined dedicated diligence with painstaking attention to detail, a remarkable memory, unfailing geniality and strong party loyalty.

He was a conservative Democrat who said last year that the party stood a very good chance of winning the 1976 presidential election — "if the reformers don't lose it again."

A physical fitness buff for most of his life, Farley exercised regularly and remained an active presence in party politics. He summoned reporters for pre-birthday news conferences for more than three decades, dispensing his views on current political issues, making predictions and reminiscing.

His most recent session was less than two weeks ago, when he said he was nearly finished with a book on his relationships with the Roosevelts.

Farley, who entered statewide politics as a successful businessman in buildings supplies, helped manage Roosevelt's two campaigns for New York governor, in 1928 and 1930.

He campaigned hard for Roosevelt's successful run for the presidency in 1932, serving as his floor manager at the national convention in Chicago that nominated FDR. On his way to deliver his acceptance speech, Roosevelt spotted Farley at the Chicago airport, seized his hand and said, "Jim, old pal — put it right there — great work!"

For seven years, from the beginning of FDR's administration in 1933, Farley directed Democratic strategy as party chairman and served as postmaster general.

He once called politics "the noblest of careers" and said he felt that politics and business were related.

Brown to continue fight to beat Carter

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. says he'll continue to battle Jimmy Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination despite a flurry of endorsements for the front-runner.

Brown, fresh from victory in his home state, flew to New Orleans Wednesday to seek Louisiana's uncommitted delegates.

"My expectations are low but my hopes are high. I am a David out to bring down a political Goliath," Brown said on his arrival at New Orleans International Airport.

Earlier, he blasted Carter for accepting support from Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

"We have now a man who started off saying he was the alternative to Wallace, that he was the man who was against the machine, against the organization, all of a sudden doing a flip-flop and trying to put himself over the top with the very elements he criticized," Brown said at an airport news conference.

"I don't think the process should prematurely come to a close," said the 37-year-old governor, who captured 204 of California's 280 delegates Tuesday.

Brown also said he talked by telephone Wednesday with Minnesota Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Chicago Mayor Richard Daley. He said Daley had invited him to address Illinois Democratic delegates despite endorsing Carter.

"Obviously, a lot of delegates have gone to Carter," he said. "But it's an old political game to exaggerate your strength to get a bandwagon psychology moving.

"I've beat him every time I've been against him and I feel those who voted for me want me to go forward."

Brown said that after Louisiana, he might go on to Massachusetts, where the majority of 104 delegates picked in the March 2 primary are pledged to now inactive candidates.

Spring drizzle dampens valley

Late spring drizzles dampened the Southland today, bringing muggy weather and slippery pavements to the valley.

The weatherman said the humidity this morning was 100 per cent. The drizzles broke up the smog of the past week and the National Weather Service predicted sunny skies and warmer temperatures for Friday.

The mercury hovered at a high of 70 Wednesday and the same was expected for today. A high of 76 is predicted for Friday.

It was the first time since 1957 that rain fell in the valley on a June 10.

RECEIVE MEDALLIONS

Heidi Mayer, left, and Tammy Showalter admire medallions presented to all graduates of Alta Loma High School prior to commencement Wednesday at Chaffey College Stadium. Both graduates wear gold cords and gold tassels indicating their high academic standing.

Banning's immigrant mayor

'Never give up freedom for security,' ALHS grads told

A German-born woman mayor received a standing ovation from the 350 Alta Loma High School graduates when she warned them of the dangers of losing their freedom.

Mrs. Brigitte Page, Banning's first woman mayor, addressed graduates and families Wednesday in the Chaffey College Stadium.

"Everyone wants security, but we pay dearly for it," said the mayor. "Never give up your freedom for security."

Mrs. Page compared the opportunities offered the graduates of 1976 with those she faced in Nazi-controlled Germany prior to World War II.

"We are not even as free today as when I came to the United States 29 years ago, because too many people have allowed governmental controls."

Steve Robinson, senior class president, outlined the history of the graduating class as a cold wind swept across the stadium, sometimes making the speakers inaudible.

"We must not think of this as the end of an era, but as the beginning of a phase in our lives," said salutatorian Rose Corona.

"While we face many responsibilities, our most important responsibility is to ourselves and to what we believe."

Valedictorian Sharlene Land urged her classmates to "make dreams a reality."

Diplomas were awarded by C. Robert Erickson, assistant superintendent at Chaffey Union High School District.

Montclair High co-valedictorian: Don't make knowledge useless

Ann Dittmer, co-valedictorian of Montclair High School, told her fellow graduates Wednesday night that "knowledge is worthless unless converted into wisdom and common sense."

Miss Dittmer joined co-valedictorian Linda Palmer and salutatorian Debra Pagan in remarks to 212 graduates during commencement in the high school stadium. More than 1,500 parents, relatives and friends battled winds and chilly weather to observe the ceremony.

Miss Palmer defined the meaning of the graduation ceremony, saying "It brings honor to us as we complete our high school careers. It is a ceremony of appreciation. It allows us to reflect upon our educational accomplishments and celebrate the reaching of our goals."

Miss Pagan traced the "Spirit of '76" through the accomplishments of individuals and groups in student government, drama, sports, music and marching bands, art and scholastic achievement.

Pete Pollack, oceanography, geology and general science teacher at Montclair for 17 years, participated in the ceremony for the last time as a parent, watching daughter Torrie and son Jeff graduate with honors. Another daughter, Penny, 20, was 11th in the class of 1973.

All three children are outstanding scholars with Torrie accepted as one of the first women to attend Claremont Men's College in September and Jeff in the top five academically of the 1976 class.

For the first time in six years, Pollack will be without one of his children at Montclair High. His wife, Lois, teaches at Vina Danks Junior High in Ontario.

'We're all part of each other'—OHS speaker

"No one will forget us because we're all part of each other," valedictorian Jennifer Dillon told her fellow Ontario High School graduates during the eighth annual commencement exercises Wednesday night in the school's auditorium.

Miss Dillon said she was "scared to death" and got "chills" during her first days of high school but she stuck it out. Sticking to a task is important, she noted.

A person's potential is also extremely vital, said Miss Dillon.

"I'm so glad we've had this time together," she added, in thanking the teachers, administrators, parents and fellow citizens.

Salutatorian Cheryl Brown wondered why she was chosen to "stand up here. I am the second highest in my class, but so what? There are others out there with special talents. They all should be honored."

Summing up her high school years, she said, "We have learned from our mistakes, about ourselves and life in general. Hopefully we will be able to put forth some hopes and dreams. There are lots of good times to remember.

"But we can't sit back and criticize — we have to think about doing something for ourselves now."

Senior Class President Carolyn Burns presented the 1976 graduating class and G. Adrian Chalfant, president of the Chaffey school board, presented diplomas to 235 graduates.

FTC opens hearings on regulating mortuaries

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Witnesses castigated funeral parlor practices and costs as the Federal Trade Commission opened nine days of hearings here on a proposed rule that would place the industry under federal regulation.

"Usually, a man goes in, he's upset, he's distraught, and the funeral director throws his arm around him and says, 'Don't worry about anything. We'll take care of it all.' That's fine, but he doesn't really know what everything's going to cost him," said Robert J. Boylan of the Washington-based American Association of Retired Persons.

"The proposed rule is going to give the consumer a little better idea of how much a funeral is going to cost."

The proposed rule, drafted to curb alleged abuses in the industry, would require full price disclosure on merchandise and services in connection with funerals.

It would also eliminate what the FTC called "certain abuses," including unauthorized embalming, "defacement or disparagement" of inexpensive caskets or the requirement that a casket be purchased for cremation.

The hearings are being conducted in six cities.

Boylan presented letters from association members who claimed to have been victimized by funeral directors, including one from a Riviera, Ariz., woman who said she had been "grossly overcharged" by an Arizona mortuary.

Another witness, J.J. Kaster Jr., a Texas legislator who is also a licensed funeral director and embalmer, told the hearing he had been harassed and blackmailed by other morticians when he authored regulations on the industry.

An industry spokesman, Howard C. Raether of the National Funeral Directors Association, accused the FTC of "trying to bring about a revolution in funeral practices" without adequately researching the matter.

John Doe No. 96: still a mystery

The body of a man found dead of multiple stab wounds and a crushed skull in Diamond Bar recently remained unidentified today and sheriff's homicide investigators admit they are surprised at their inability to learn who the victim was.

The body was found in a brushy area off Diamond Bar Boulevard May 27. Despite the fact that the man had been beaten savagely, deputies figured it was the stab wounds which killed him.

They also reported that the victim had been deformed and because of those deformities they expected that identifying him would be easy. They expected to find that a patient from some medical institution was missing, but they did not. As a result, the victim remains John Doe No. 96.

The deformities included underdeveloped fingers and underdeveloped lower legs. Those deformities led to erroneous reports early in the examination that the victim's body had been mutilated.

The body was discovered by a motorist late that afternoon. It lay about 40 yards down an embankment 50 feet from Diamond Bar Boulevard and about a quarter of a mile east of Clear Creek Canyon Road.

Investigators said there have been few new developments since the grisly discovery.

MWD expecting no tax increase

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Metropolitan Water District board of directors, saying no tax increase is expected, has approved a $193.2 million 1976-77 budget.

The board said Tuesday that the tax rate is expected to remain 13 cents per $100 assessed valuation for the district, which supplies some 11 million Southern Californians with 40 per cent of their water requirements.

The budget represents a drop from the $242 million of last year, but that figure included a $50 million expenditure to redeem bond anticipation notes, a spokesman for the MWD said.

Future plans for the district include a major water project costing $605 million, although the project is just being considered, the spokesman said. Completion of the proposed project, which would link the Sacramento River with the State Water Project aqueduct serving Los Angeles, would be scheduled in the early 1980s, the spokesman said.

Man pleads guilty to motel holdup

Willie Gonzales Davilla, 25, has pleaded guilty in Pomona Superior Court to charges of robbery and has been comitted for a 90-day period of pre-sentencing psychological and physical examination at the California Institution for Men at Chino.

Davilla was arrested March 4 and accused of robbing the owner at the Lemon Tree Motel at 1700 Gillette Road. Arrested with Davilla was Vicki Elaine Davilla, 21, but she was not prosecuted.

Police reported that the victim, Kenneth Wu, was alone in the office when a man armed with a rifle entered, pointed the rifle at him and demanded money. After getting cash, the robber fled to a car outside and was driven away.

The car ran off the road at the west end of Gillette Road and the occupants fled on foot. The couple was seized a few minutes later nearby and officers reported finding the stolen money and the rifle near the motel.

Judge Sam Cianchetti scheduled Davilla's probation hearing and sentencing Sept. 3, or sooner if the examinations at CIM are completed earlier.

Agreement on Lebanese cease-fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria and its Palestinian and leftist Lebanese foes agreed on a cease-fire today. But one Lebanese Christian leader, President Suleiman Franjieh, opposed creation of an international Arab force to end the 14-month-old war in his country.

There was a marked reduction in fighting on all fronts. The Palestinian guerrillas said there had been no shelling or shooting since Wednesday.

"They are only sniping occasionally to let us know they are still there," one guerrilla fighter said of the Syrians.

Beirut radio claimed Syrian tanks in southern Lebanon tried to cut off the Sidon-Beirut highway at midday but were driven off by the guerrillas.

The radio, which is controlled by the alliance of Yasir Arafat's Palestinians and Kamal Jumblatt's leftist Lebanese Moslems, said Syrian President Hafez Assad ordered his estimated 12,000 troops and 300 tanks in northern, eastern and southern Lebanon to observe a cease-fire in place at daybreak.

An official in Damascus said Syrian troops began observing the truce Wednesday.

"The president ordered a moratorium on the Syrian advance pending completion of arrangements to form an Arab peacekeeping force to supervise the truce and bring about national reconciliation in Lebanon," Beirut radio said.

It said the Palestinian-Lebanese joint command issued similar orders.

A Damascus announcement said an agreement had been reached to form a truce commission made up of representatives from Libya, Algeria, Syria and the Palestinians.

Israel has intensified its watch on the Lebanese situation, the Israeli Foreign Ministry said. The ministry said "we have reached no positive or negative" position on the Arab peacekeeping force.

The cease-fire orders went out after hard fighting by the Arafat-Jumblatt forces stopped the Syrian advance on Beirut and the port city of Sidon 25 miles to the south. Damascus said a third force in northern Lebanon was stopped at Tripoli, the port city 40 miles north of Beirut.

An emergency conference of Arab foreign ministers in Cairo authorized the secretary-general of the Arab League, Mahmoud Riad, to form the pan-Arab peace force.

Franjieh, who for months has resisted Moslem demands for his resignation, declared in a broadcast that the Christians would "resist Arab intervention by all national and international means I can muster." He said the Arab countries had no right to "determine Lebanon's destiny in Lebanon's absence."

BACHELOR SUPPORT

Two attractive blondes, Liz Lucas, left, and Valerie Lear carry a banner for their favorite bachelor as Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. mingles with crowd at New Orleans airport Wednesday night. Brown is in New Orleans seeking the state's 19 uncommitted delegates.

Democrat rush is on to join Carter bandwagon

By the Associated Press

It's all over but the counting. Delegates by the dozens are joining the Jimmy Carter juggernaut, making it nearly certain the Georgia peanut farmer will be the Democratic presidential nominee.

Carter saw his delegate totals climb Wednesday to all but assure his first-ballot convention nomination, and a legion of bigname Democrats added their endorsements in a show of party unity.

Many of his primary opponents — George Wallace, Henry Jackson, Frank Church and Morris Udall — proclaimed Carter a certain winner. The scorecard at the Democratic National Committee showed Carter with 1,514 delegates, nine more than needed for a convention victory in July.

A landslide victory in the Ohio primary Tuesday, and second-place finishes in New Jersey and California, catapulted Carter to the fabled tipping point; by today the opposing field had dwindled away.

As dozens of uncommitted delgates pledged support for Carter, he was within grasp of hundreds more now officially committed elsewhere or still uncommitted.

While the delegate roundup continued, Carter's tasks became the selection of a running mate, solidifying party unity, and planning a general election campaign against either Gerald Ford or Ronald Reagan.

According to The Associated Press survey of publicly committed delegates, Carter already can claim a definite 1,206, with enough to bring him the nomination expected to join the bandwagon in the weeks before the mid-July Democratic national convention in New York.

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, barred from the 1972 Democratic convention, studied the Ohio results and said he'd vote for Carter. Adlai Stevenson III released the bloc of 86 Illinois delegates committed to him and most were likely to go to the former Georgia governor.

George Wallace, crippled by a gunman while seeking the nomination four years ago and routed in the early Southern primaries by Carter, endorsed Carter and asked his 168 delegates to follow suit. It ended the Alabama governor's fourth and what he said would be his final try for the White House.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, seeker of the presidency since 1960 who hoped the party would come to him this year, refused to authorize a campaign in his behalf, saying Carter was "virtually certain" to be nominated.

Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, well financed as the campaign began but badly drubbed by Carter in the Pennsylvania primary, told supporters he will endorse Carter and try to deliver his 248 delegates.

Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, who also challenged Carter, as much as acknowledged the race was over.

Liberal party leaders, such as Sens. George McGovern and Edward Kennedy, also noted Carter's victory and pledged support.

Wallace, cool to previous party nominees, said all he asked of Carter was "to try to make all the people of his country one of the finest presidents we've ever had."

Only California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who started late but beat Carter in every primary where they met, insisted the race remained open.

The Republican chase was neck-and-neck, and was not likely to end before the party's national convention in August.

Reagan won 167 delegates when he stomped Ford in California's winner-take-all primary. But Ford countered with a 67-delegate sweep in New Jersey and a 94-3 margin in Ohio.

Ford now takes a 965 to 862 lead in total delegates into the climactic series of GOP conventions and delegate-awarding meetings in 13 states where nearly 300 delegates are at stake. At the August convention in Kansas City, 1,130 votes will be required for nomination.

Brown had 204 of his 226 delegates concentrated in his home state of California. But in New Orleans where he was hunting uncommitted delegates, the young governor maintained: "It's late, it's an uphill battle, it's a longshot, but I am going to give the delegates a choice when they get to New York City."

Brown pointed out that either he or uncommitted slates for whom he campaigned beat Carter every place they met: California, Nevada, Maryland, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Oregon.

But the victories came too late for Brown, who didn't enter the race until April, more than a year after Carter.

GM may hike cars, trucks 6 per cent

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., providing the auto industry's first hint of new-model price hikes, has told dealers that prices on its 1977 cars and trucks may increase an average 6 per cent over comparably equipped 1976 models.

That translates roughly into a $350 increase in the price of an average car, including options. It also means an increase of $200 to $2,000 in the price of a truck, depending on whether it's a light, medium or heavy-duty model.

GM confirmed Wednesday it notified dealers of the possible boost in "price assurance" letters sent out a week ago. GM and the other car makers send out such letters at this time each year so dealers can take new-model orders from fleet purchasers before the vehicles go on sale.

The move allows the dealers to write orders before final prices are set later this summer with the assurance that any increase above 6 per cent will be absorbed by the company.

Meanwhile, in other auto industry developments Wednesday:

—GM said it has decided not to make any future payments for the worldwide licensing rights to the ill-fated Wankel rotary engine unless it puts the engine into production. The announcement was the latest indication that GM may never manufacture the power plant.

—Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. proposed a one-year extension of laws requiring seatbelts in cars to give him time to decide whether to require that passive restraint systems, such as the controversial airbags, be equipped in all future cars. Coleman said he will hold a public hearing on the airbag question Aug. 3.

—The Labor Department rejected claims for special jobless benefits filed in behalf of 68,000 GM workers in 10 states, saying they were not eligible for assistance under the Trade Act of 1974 because competition from imported cars was not a major cause of the workers' layoffs. But the department ruled 6,000 other GM workers in New York and Ohio were eligible for the benefits, which provide 70 per cent of average weekly pay for up to a year when combined with regular unemployment compensation.

—Ford Motor Co. said it will add 1,250 jobs at its St. Louis car plant this fall, when it resumes a second shift due to increased demand for large models. Ford suspended the shift in January 1974.

A year ago, GM offered dealers a 6 per cent price protection on 1976-model cars and trucks, then raised base prices 4.4 per cent on cars and 7.3 per cent on trucks.

GM did not offer price protection on its cars this time.

Education aid bill advances

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s against it, but a $250 million school finance bill continues to make progress in the legislature.

The Senate-passed measure by Sen. Albert Rodda, D-Sacramento, easily cleared its first Assembly Committee.

It would force wealthy districts, for the first time, to share money raised in school tax override elections with poor districts.

The bill may hit trouble at its next stop, the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, which is stalling spending bills until it learns how much surplus the state has.

A Rodda aide said negotiations have yet to begin with the Brown administration, which says the bill is too costly. Last year Brown cut $27 million from a $115-million school aid bill, also sponsored by Rodda.

The new bill would help schools that continue to lag behind inflation because of state restrictions on the annual growth of their property tax revenues, Rodda said.

Ford orders new CAB procedures

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today ordered new procedures for the handling of Civil Aeronautics Board decisions requiring presidential review. One step is aimed at earlier public disclosure.

A definite link between chloroform and cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government, backing up its call for a ban on some chloroform products, says new test results show the chemical definitely causes cancer in mice and rats.

Chloroform taken orally induces liver cancer in male and female mice, kidney tumors in male rats and a small number of thyroid tumors in female rats, the National Cancer Institute reported.

In April the Food and Drug Administration proposed a ban effective July 8 on using chloroform in cough and cold remedies, toothpastes, liniments and food packaging. But the agency decided not to recall chloroform products already on the market.

The tests, although conclusive for animals, do not prove chloroform causes cancer in humans, FDA Commissioner Alexander Schmidt noted.

"The amount fed to the test animals exceeds by far the amount to which any person could be exposed with present products," Schmidt said. "But the benefits of chloroform are minimal and do not warrant any risk, however small."

Americans are exposed to 300,000 pounds of chloroform per year in pharmaceutical products, the report said. About 98,000 pounds is consumed orally, about 117,000 pounds go into inhalation drugs and about 86,000 pounds goes into skin preparations.

The bulk of U.S. production, which was 250 million pounds in 1973, is used to manufacture refrigerants, aerosol propellants and plastics.

Spotlight on crime

Boys on bikes accosted by older youths

Two students riding their bikes on Ganesha Boulevard near Park Road in POMONA were stopped and searched by older youths late Wednesday morning, Pomona police reported.

The victims, William R. Larkin, 13, and Richard G. Blount, 13, said the older teenagers got out of a car and demanded money as they were riding their bikes in the isolated area of the city. The pair searched the victims and took a knife from one before being driven off in the car containing two girls and another youth.

The two older youths were described as black and about 17. One was 6 feet 2 and slender while the other was 5 feet 9 and wore khaki trousers and a brown leather vest.

Table stolen

Thieves recently stole a large table from the child support branch of the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office, in POMONA, police reported.

The thieves apparently had a key when they entered the office at 436 W. Fourth St. and carried off the five-foot long table, police said. Nothing else was taken. The table was valued at $70.

Court refuses to open up Longet trial to public

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to order a Colorado judge to admit news reporters and the public to a preliminary hearing on a manslaughter charge against entertainer Claudine Longet.

The court acted a few minutes before 11 a.m. EDT, the time set for the hearing to begin in Aspen, Colo.

Lawyers representing 12 Colorado news organizations asked Justice Byron R. White for an emergency order opening the hearing to the media and the public pending a full-scale appeal to the high court.

White referred the matter to the full court, which rejected the application in a brief unsigned order.

Miss Longet, 34, is accused of manslaughter in the fatal shooting of her lover, skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich in Aspen on March 21. Sabich, 31, was found dead in his $250,000 home, where he had lived with Miss Longet for two years.

She is the ex-wife of singer Andy Williams.

The preliminary hearing, expected to last five days before Pitkin County District Court Judge George E. Lohr, is to determine whether there is sufficient evidence to try the entertainer.

Among witnesses who could be called to testify at the hearing are Noel Williams, Miss Longet's 12-year-old daughter.

More bus, car pool lanes seen in defeat of rail plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — County residents probably face more buses and car-pool lanes because of their vote against two propositions that would have helped fund a 232-mile rail commuter network, says County Supervisor Baxter Ward.

However, officials of the Southern California Rapid Transit District said Wednesday they may seek up to $800 million in federal matching funds for the line which they say would effectively match the transit proposal that Ward had backed.

RTD General Manager Jack Gilstrap told his board of directors the cost of a starter line from suburban Canoga Park to downtown and then to Long Beach harbor would cost $1 billion, compared with $5.8 billion for the full 232 miles of the Sunset Coast commuter line that would have webbed Los Angeles County.

Props. R and T on Tuesday's ballot would have each increased the sales tax half a cent to help finance the commuter network.

The vote Tuesday against Prop. 4 was 972,310 to 665,363 and against Prop. T was 810,961 to 532,795.

Mayor Tom Bradley, who had joined Ward in supporting the measure, suggested the "no" vote could "spell the end of financing a countywide (transit) project."

But Bradley said U.S. Transportation Secretary William Coleman Jr. told him Wednesday the negative vote would not preclude federal financial help for the starter line.

Gilstrap said federal Urban Mass Transit Agency rules can supply up to $4 for every $1 spent by local jurisdictions. If approved, he said, the county may yet get the full equivalent of Ward's proposal.

He said that the most suitable source of the $200 million to come from local government would be a gas-tax diversion plan approved in 1974.

Other proposed sources for local funding are a two per cent sales tax on automobiles, a one-half cent sales tax increase, extension of federal revenue sharing, creation of a special assessment district and even an addition to the property tax, said RTD spokesman Walt Thompson.

Jobless rate to continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's top economic adviser said today that a midyear review has prompted the administration to stick with its original forecast for 1976, including that of continued high unemployment, despite the nation's "sustained and durable" recovery from recession.

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the President's Council of Economic Advisers said that the nation should not expect the large gains in economic output of the last nine months to continue at such a high level.

And despite substantial improvements in recent weeks, he said the administration still believes the jobless rate may be 7 per cent or more at the end of the year.

The women in Getty's will

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The dozen women in J. Paul Getty's will are a curious combination that includes an ex-wife, a "hostess" and an interior decorator.

Their marriages and friendships with the billionaire go back more than two decades, beginning with his fifth and last wife whom he divorced in 1956. Four other wives were not mentioned in the will.

The will was filed in County Court here Tuesday following Getty's death Sunday night at his country estate in Guildford, England. He was 83.

The dozen women left an assortment of annuities and stock allotments totaling about $2 million — generous by any standard but still only a tiny slice of Getty's massive fortune.

Most of his treasures, with an estimated value of $2-$4 billion, go to the J. Paul Getty Museum at Malibu, Calif.

The 23-page document listed Getty's permanent address at the current site of the museum, even though Getty has lived the last 20 years in England.

The largest of the bequests went to his former wife, Louise Lynch Getty, establishing a fund to pay her $55,000 a year for life.

In addition, 5,000 shares of Getty Oil common stock, valued at $826,250 at current market prices, was left to Penelope Ann Kitson, the British divorcee who decorated Getty's 450-year-old estate.

The will also sets up a lifetime income for Mrs. Kitson of $1,167 a month.

Getty's longtime hostess at the estate, Rosabella Burch, received stock worth about $82,625.

Also remembered were Mary Teissier, who was to receive stock worth $413,125 plus $750 monthly income for life; Gloria Bigelow, stock worth $103,281.25, plus $400 a month for life; Mary Maginnes, stock worth $103,281.25, plus $400 a month for life.

Also Belene Clifford was listed to receive stock worth $183,281.25, and $300 monthly for life; Karin Mannhardt, stock worth $41,312.25, and $200 a month for life; Lady Ursula D'Abo, stock worth $165,250; Marianne von Alvensleben, $1,000 a month for life; Robina Lund, $209 a month for life, and Hildegard Kuhn, $100 a month for life.

William F. Bell, vice president of the Title Insurance and Trust Co., a co-executor of the will, was uncertain of the identities of the women.

"I'm not too familiar with Mr. Getty's personal history," Bell said. "The women were probably friends of his."

Besides Title Insurance, the will named two of Getty's sons, Gordon Peter and Jean Ronald, as co-executors.

Upland school budget shows a slight tax hike

A tentative budget of $7,402,990 for 1976-77 school year, calling for only a small tax rate increase, was approved by the Upland school board Tuesday night.

The approved budget represents a 5.6 per cent increase over the 1975-76 budget. The present total general purpose tax rate is $2.70 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Because of increased assessed valuation in the district, the tax rate increase is estimated at two or three cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The budget showed almost no increase in certified employes' salaries over this past year. The combined salaries for classified personnel took a $26,718 drop due to the elimination of 24 teacher aides positions.

The budget will undergo further study and consideration before it is approved in its final form for the 1976-77 year.

Efforts are being made to find a replacement for Supt. Bill Plaster who will be leaving his post July 1 for a similar position with the Fountain Valley schools.

In its search for a replacement the Upland board has hired consultant Bob Stout, who has put together a brochure on the qualifications required for the job. Some 250 of the brochures are being sent to various educational centers throughout California where they can be seen by prospective applicants.

Applications for the position are to be returned by July 5. Following that a screening committee comprised of Stout, Roy C. Hill, San Bernardino County superintendant, and Bill Cunningham, executive secretary of California School Administration, will narrow the field to five or 10 candidates.

The Upland school board will determine the replacement from among the five or 10 candidates selected by the screening committee.

A report on the 1976 summer school session was given to the board by Lawrence Waggoner, summer school coordinator for the Upland School District.

According to Waggoner's figures some 1,900 students have signed up for the upcoming session. That figure was said to be above last year's mark. A minimum of 25 students per class or an average thereof throughout each building was required for a class to remain on the schedule.

The summer school session, which opens June 21, is open to pre-school through adult education.

STU GILLIAM, actor and comedian, will lead an informal discussion on the Baha'i Faith Friday at 8 p.m. at the Ganesha Park auditorium in Pomona. The public is invited, and no donations will be accepted.

Y offering swim classes

Two one-week "Learn to Swim" sessions will be offered by the Pomona Valley YMCA beginning Monday and June 21.

The sessions are for boys and girls from 6 to 15 who cannot swim more than 20 feet. Cost is $2 per week.

Final date for registration for the first week is Saturday. Registration for the second week should be made by June 19.

Lessons will be given during the daytime, with qualified instructors and lifeguards on duty at all times.

For information, persons may call 623-6433.

Postcard bills back in Chino

Chino city officials have decided to reinstate the use of postcards in billing residents, to save money.

The use of postcard bills instead of the current envelope system will save taxpayers $256 per month, officials said. The increase in postage rates necessitated the change.

The switch will be effective with this month's water billings, and residents should receive the first postcard bills in July. Envelopes will be utilized only during months when special notices are to be mailed with the regular water bill.

MSAC cutbacks bring an end to Writers' Day

Writers' Day, which has brought more than 1,000 persons to Mt. San Antonio College during each of the past four years, apparently has been killed by an austere ax.

But just who is wielding the ax is not quite clear.

The college's community services section, whose budget is being trimmed by more than $50,000 to help cut expenses, announced it could no longer afford to pay one-fifth of a teacher's time to coordinate the program. The time would have cost community services about $4,000.

Instead of release time, the college administration offered $500 cash to the English department to run the program. The department unanimously rejected the counter-proposal, claiming it was insufficient compensation for the amount of work involved.

Writers' Day not only brought well known personalities such as Ray Bradbury, Theodore Sturgeon, Jack Smith, Art Seidenbaum and others to the college for a day of consultation, but also provided writing contests and prizes for the valley's amateur authors.

Salty deal

The state of New York has been handing salt to Indians for 187 years. Under a treaty with the Onondagas in 1788, New York is obligated to give a bushel of salt every October to any member of the tribe who requests it. In return, New York received 15,000 acres of salt lands.

Pomona wants to set up area compensation plan

School district quitting state program

Pomona school board is ready to form a joint powers agreement with Claremont and Bonita school districts to establish their own workers' compensation insurance program.

On a motion made by C. Allen Braswell and seconded by Don Donnelly, the board by a 4-1 vote Tuesday retained R.L. Kautz & Co., Los Angeles, to administer the program.

The no vote was cast by Gene Whitlock, who maintained at each discussion that he felt the district should avoid the joint powers agreement with the other districts and form its own self insurance fund.

Claremont's board has approved the idea but Bonita's hasn't taken action.

Forming the agreement and going self-insured was strongly recommended by Lynn Rountree, assistant superintendent of business services. He cautioned the board that costs of remaining with the State Compensation Insurance Fund would jump from $180,000 this year to $248,000 next year. He said Pomona could save as much as $50,000 during 1976-77 by pulling away from the state.

"I have studied it carefully. I believe it is the right thing to do," said Rountree.

A representative of the state fund was present. He cautioned the board that 1975 had been "the worst year in history" for the fund and "you will in effect be going into the insurance business at a time when major companies are backing out."

Clarence K. Vaughn, executive vice president of R.L. Kautz & Co., told the board his firm would work with a district safety committee, make on-site inspections, computerize the district in such a way potential dangers would be "red flagged" and administer the program as a substantial savings.

He said "peer pressure", when employes realize claims awards come from district not state money, tends to keep filings down.

He said Pomona this past year had experienced a 78.5 per cent loss ratio, meaning the school district, through the state fund, had paid out 78½ cents in claims awards for each $1 paid in premiums.

The state fund premium paid by the district for 1975-76 was $180,000.

Vaughn said his firm administers self insurance programs for more than 30 school districts, Alameda and Sacramento counties and 32 cities, including Montclair, Ontario, Upland, Anaheim, Baldwin Park, Glendora and Whittier.

Upland recreation activities abound

A variety of summer programs and activities for all ages will be offered by the Upland Recreation Department starting June 21.

Many classes scheduled in parks and schools are free and participants may register at the first class. Programs which have a fee require pre-registration at the department office, 404 N. Second Ave., between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Brochures outlining the classes, locations and times are available at the recreation office, Upland City Hall, Upland Library or Upland Chamber of Commerce.

A special class for children 9 and over to learn mime and pantomime is planned by the department. The class will be taught by Marilee Caldwell, a member of the Brigham Young University Magical Mime Troupe. Classes will be held on Mondays with the younger members meeting from 1 to 2:30 p.m. and older students, from 2:30 to 4 p.m.

The Recreation Department is seeking an interested person to supervise the bicycle motocross course and develop a competitive motocross team for youths from 6 to 17.

The motocross course is located at the corner of 15th Street and Campus Avenue. It is being improved and will reopen on July 6.

Anyone interested in applying for the supervisor position should call 985-0994 for a job application form.

Home blaze linked to fireworks

Fireworks which landed on the roof may have started the fire which heavily damaged a two-story home in Glendora Tuesday afternoon, county firemen said.

An explosion and fire were reported at 739 Hunter's Trail at 4:20 p.m. Firemen arrived to find the roof and attic of the home completely in flames.

The loss estimate was $12,000 to the structure and another $7,000 to contents.

Firemen said a routine investigation was ordered but it was obvious the point of origin of the fire was the roof. Neighbors reported hearing fireworks during the afternoon, they said.

The house was occupied by Jay Levin. There were no injuries reported.

Rural school reopened by Nevada court

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — A tiny high school in the Nevada desert has been brought back to life by a court ruling that a bigger school is not necessarily a better school.

A penny-pinching school board shut down Lund High School this school year, forcing its 30 students to ride a bus 80 miles a day to and from a high school in Ely.

But the Nevada Supreme Court unanimously ruled Monday that rural schools are worth saving. The court said close relationship between a school and the home is "something very precious to American education, which has been deteriorating in large communities."

The court rejected the argument that students from Lund would get a better education in Ely. An 80-mile round-trip bus ride impairs a student's performance and participation in school events, the court said.

The ruling means the 50-year-old school will reopen next fall.

Lund residents greeted the decision enthusiastically.

School Board member Phil Carter, a Lund resident, termed the decision "the greatest thing that has ever happened in the White River Valley."

Louise Reid, who helped organize a drive to reopen the school, said, "I'm so overwhelmed I don't know what to say. You'd have to quote the tears of happiness which were shed."

Karla McKenzie, 16, who rode a bus 80 miles a day to and from the high school in Ely during the closure, said she's happy her upcoming senior year will be in her hometown of Lund.

"I didn't like Ely very well. Mostly I didn't like riding back and forth," she said. "And I think I learned more in Lund. I got the same grades in Ely but I didn't have to work as hard."

"There's a lot more kids there," she explained. "The teachers can't pay as close attention. The kids get away with a lot more."

"The only thing I liked about it was that I met some new friends. That's about all," said Karla, whose parents run a dairy farm.

The high court's ruling overturned a lower court decision that had supported the White Pine County School Board's 4-3 vote last year to close the school.

Board members who wanted to close Lund High to save money and improve the students' schooling had no comment or were unavailable for comment on the decision.

One argument for the shutdown was that the county school district would otherwise face a $75,000 budget deficit. The Supreme Court said the figure "was not correct." Lund citizens claimed the school district really had a $250,000 surplus.

The high court agreed it costs twice as much per student to educate a child in Lund as it does in Ely, which has 800 students in the high school. But the court said to give great weight to that argument "would place the continued existence of rural high schools in extreme jeopardy."

At home in home town

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — While showing members of her staff something of her hometown, First Lady Betty Ford spent more than an hour singing along with the piano player at a downtown bar.

"She wanted to show her staff Grand Rapids," said Charles Anderson, 63, the piano player at the Back Room Saloon in the Pantlind Hotel. Anderson said he worked with Mrs. Ford at a local department store before her marriage in 1948.

Pomona building projects tops $2 million for May

A refrigerated warehouse valued at $1.2 million topped construction projects last month in Pomona.

The JNJ Land Co., Chino, took out a building permit to erect the one-story concrete tilt-up structure at 2800 S. Reservoir St.

During May, the city Building Department issued 164 permits representing a combined valuation of $2,037,331.

Other major projects included:

Pomona Valley Community Hospital, interior alterations on the hospital's first floor for remodeling of the radiology area, $323,000; Ralph Della Pelle, one story industrial building, 1206 Price St., $50,000; Pomona Textile Co., 1980 S. Reservoir St., one story warehouse, $46,800; Primal Meat Co., 2037 Mt. Vernon Ave., addition to meat plant, $35,000; and Dr. H. Morgan, 2021 N. Towne Ave., interior alterations for offices and corridors, $25,000.

Permits issued by categories and the valuations are: single family homes, one, $28,000; dwelling additions and alterations, 107, $152,829; industrial buildings, three, $1,319,111; swimming pools, seven, $32,700; additions or alterations to non residential buildings, six, $438,000; all other permits, 31, $55,741; signs, five, $8,700.

The May construction activity pushed the number of permits for the first five months this year to 818 permits and $4,085,358 valuation. This compared with the same period last year with 826 permits and $3,137,890 valuation.

The Importance of Being Rock Hudson at 50

Rock Hudson thinks of himself as "rather average," but you'll disagree after you've read this week's cover story on the tall and ruggedly handsome star of movies and television. Hudson is one of the few actors to survive typecasting — he did comedy after comedy in the late 50s and early 60s, but escaped that rut to play dramatic parts and finally to star in the successful TV series, "MacMillan and Wife." In fact, Hudson is the only top movie star of his generation to make the transition from movies to TV. You'll find out that Hudson was once a painfully shy and nonaggressive person. The "new" Rock Hudson is fiercely independent, but still treasures his privacy. Read about his formula for chasing away the blues. Find out that why, while having a family was not important to Hudson, his mother is important to him. Read about the actor who at 50 is still as popular as he was at 35 — Rock Hudson.

West Pointer who got silent treatment gets Army medal

BERLIN (AP) — James J. Pelosi, the West Pointer who was given the silent treatment by fellow cadets despite his exoneration of cheating charges, has won an Army Commendation Medal for saving an East German man injured in a traffic accident.

Pelosi, now a first lieutenant in the Berlin Brigade's Special Troops Unit, was given the medal May 17. Army officials said he was driving through East Germany on his way back to West Berlin March 19 when he came upon the scene of a collision between two civilian trucks.

"This one guy was pretty badly smashed up," Pelosi said later. "The trucks hit head-on and I was the next car along. I had a first aid kit in my car so I could take action."

The Army officials said they received a full report from the Russians who control allied traffic through East Germany. The Russians said Pelosi administered first aid that saved the man's life.

Pelosi, 24, of New York City, has been in West Berlin since October 1973.

In his junior year at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., he was found guilty by a cadet honor committee of cheating on an examination. An officers' review board exonerated him, but fellow cadets imposed "the Silence" anyway.

The treatment, a traditional way of forcing cadets to leave the academy, means none of his classmates was supposed to speak or associate with him. He was forced to live and dine alone and could not take part in class activities.

Pelosi said in an interview several months after his graduation in June 1973 that those cadets who shunned him at West Point continued the silent treatment after graduation. However, he refused to say if he was being subjected to it in Germany.

The Silence was formally abolished at West Point in September 1973.

An officer who graduated from West Point just ahead of Pelosi said in an interview, "I hear he's been doing a good job here in Berlin.

Asked what position he would take, the officer said, "I don't know him socially so the situation hasn't presented itself. I think each of us probably would act according to what he thought would be right."

Pelosi has refused to discuss the silent treatment or the current cheating investigation at West Point.

U.S. children are no longer growing taller

WASHINGTON (AP) — American children have stopped growing taller, thereby breaking a century-old trend of youngsters towering over their parents, the government reported Wednesday.

One medical expert speculated that the U.S. population had reached its maximum genetic growth potential.

The findings, if they hold up in future years, hold important implications for the transportation, housing, sports, clothing and furniture industries.

Professional basketball scouts, for example, could not be confident of finding even taller centers in future crops of superstars. The seats on modern-day buses and subways wouldn't be as uncomfortable in 20 years as the seats on preWorld War II buses are today. And the hotel-motel industry wouldn't have to bring in so many oversized beds.

But the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the new set of child growth charts, the first update in more than 40 years, will prove most valuable to physicians. They will indicate poor nutrition or health problems if a young patient ranges at the low or high end of the national growth averages.

The charts are based on studies of more than 20,000 children across the country over the last 15 years. The charts were mathematically calculated and plotted by computers.

HEW's National Center for Health Statistics, reaching back into old medical records, found that the average 18-year-old American boy, for example, shrank a little during the first 100 years of the nation's history. Then, because of better nutrition and health care, he began growing taller until his height leveled off in recent years.

The average boy signing up for the Revolutionary Army 200 years ago was 5 feet, 6.1 inches, but since he was measured with his boots on, about 1 inch would have to be subtracted, the center said.

One hundred years later, in 1876, the average 18-year-old boy measured 5 feet, 5 inches. Today the average is 5 feet, 9.2 inches, and holding steady.

"Probably the most dramatic and significant finding from these data relating to human biology and human growth in general is what may be the end in the trend of constantly increasing size for U.S. children," said Dr. Peter V. Hamill, a medical adviser in the national center.

"This could be the result of our having reached the limits of our genetic potential regarding growth," he speculated. "However, all we can say with certainty is that whatever the factors that produced the trend of increasing size, they ceased having an effect ... by 1955 or 1956."

As a result of the study, the government has prepared a set of 14 new growth charts showing the ranges of growth in terms of height, weight, and head circumference. The charts are more precisely tuned than ever before, the center said, enabling doctors to spot a child with extraordinarily fast or slow growth who may be suffering from a previously undiagnosed illness.

DEAD AT 61 — Robert L. Hackett will be buried today in Chatham, Mass. In the big band era, Hackett appeared with Benny Goodman, Louis Armstrong, Glen Gray and Paul Whiteman.

Funeral services for horn player Bobby Hackett

CHATHAM, Mass. (AP) — A funeral mass was scheduled for today in Holy Redeemer Church for famed jazz trumpet and cornet player Robert L."bobby" Hackett.

Hackett, whose horn style influenced a generation of jazz age musicians, died Monday of an apparent heart attack at his home. He was 61.

He had been in poor health recently, and was released from Cape Cod Hospital two weeks ago after treatment for a lung ailment.

"He was one of the major jazz trumpet voices, one of maybe half a dozen I'd put in that category," said Herb Pomeroy, a jazz trumpeter now on the faculty of Berklee College of Music in Boston.

"He remained one of the most melodic jazz improvisers," he said. "His music was very simple, not involved at all. But in its simplicity it was very strong."

Hackett was a Providence, R.I., native who began playing professionally as a teen-ager. He played with major big bands, including Glenn Miller, Benny Goodman, Louis Armstrong, and Paul Whiteman.

He also was in demand by singers, and had worked with Lee Wiley, Tony Bennett and Theresa Brewer.

"He had his own style and even today a trumpeter is expected to be able to imitate the Hackett style," said Pomeroy.

He leaves his widow, Edna, a son and a daughter.

Ward says he gets message in rail plan defeat

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I guess we'll just be having more buses and diamond lanes," said county Supervisor Baxter Ward after two ballot measures to finance his Sunset Coast commuter railroad were derailed by voters.

Ward, who promoted the $5.8 billion, 232-mile countywide rail plan by handing out bumper stickers to freeway-weary drivers and by helicoptering above them during rush hour with a loudspeaker said he understood the outcome.

"People don't like to spend their tax money until the last minute," he said. Propositions R and T each would have increased the sales tax half a cent to help finance the rail line, which would have been built for the most part along existing highway rights of way and flood control channels.

The alternative, said Ward early today as the result of the election became clear, is more of the controversial freeway "diamond lanes," which are restricted during rush hours to buses and carpools. Such measures are required to avoid gasoline rationing under federal antismog regulations, he said.

Opponents of R and T said the ballot propositions were for "rapid taxes" and argued buses were cheaper, provided more flexibility and would be used by more people than a fixed-rail system like the Sunset Coast Line.

Ward and rail proponents countered that oil interests wanted to keep gasoline-powered vehicles as Southern California's main transportation and argued that sooner or later the county would have to turn to rail transit as an alternative.

Cranston is confident Southland will receive gas-rationing reprieve

PB Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Alan Cranston, in a move he hopes will squelch rumors about gasoline rationing in the Los Angeles area, is confidently predicting Senate passage of an amendment that will give the city a reprieve from federal air quality standards.

Los Angeles and several other U.S. cities have not been able to meet 1970 Clean Air Act standards for clean air, largely because of auto and industrial pollution, according to Cranston.

In response to a California inquiry, EPA suggested gasoline rationing as one way Los Angeles could work to comply with air quality laws.

"The EPA administrator only suggested rationing and in the same sentence discounted the idea because of its unpopularity," Cranston said.

But the suggestion and a March 29 ruling by the Ninth Circuit Court upholding the EPA's authority to implement rationing (The City of Santa Rosa vs. EPA) as a method to bring about clean air, has created a stir in the Los Angeles area.

Cranston is now trying to allay fears brought on by the "misunderstanding" and is supporting a measure that will give EPA the power to grant extensions to cities that can't meet the act's clean air deadline.

That deadline is May 31, 1977.

"If the current law doesn't get changed Los Angeles County will have to take drastic action to meet that deadline," Cranston said. "But this amendment will allow EPA to grant deadline extensions to individual areas that can't meet the deadline."

"The power will certainly be granted."

The senator added however, that for cities to be granted the extension "there will have to be evidence the communities are trying to cut down on pollution."

Cranston also said he will oppose an amendment to the Clean Air Act that will delay the deadline for Detroit to meet auto emission standards and will "substantially" relax the nitrogen oxide regulations.

That amendment seeks to push the current deadline two years forward to 1980, from its present date of 1978.

"If Volvo can do it, I would think Detroit could too," Cranston said.

The full Senate is expected to take up debate on all Clean Air Act amendments about June 16.

Two men face trial in Chino church assault

Two Chino men being held in connection with an assault on three barrio residents at Our Lady of Guadalupe Church May 8 have been ordered to stand trial in West Valley Superior Court.

Pete Ballesteros, 32, and Ricky Castro, 23, were bound over on assault charges following a closed two-day preliminary hearing in Chino Municipal Court this week.

Police said the slayings of Ignacio "Bobby" Padilla and Manuela Cortez outside the church May 17 stemmed from the beating a week before. Padilla and three other parish council members patroling the grounds in an antivandalism patrol were the victims in the assault.

Officers indicated a total of 12 persons took part in the assault, using a cue stick and a sawed-off broom handle.

Ballesteros and Castro pleaded innocent to the charge and will appear in the Ontario court June 18. A third Chino resident, Benjamin Orosco, is being held on a battery charge in San Bernardino County Jail in the same incident, but has yet to appear for a preliminary hearing.

Nine others involved were juveniles, and could not be positively identified by witnesses, said Chino Detective Dave DeLeon.

Kite chaser hit by auto

A Pomona boy was injured Wednesday afternoon when he chased his kite into the street and was hit by a car, Pomona police reported.

The child, 8-year-old Paul Wiley, 1245 W. Mission Blvd., suffered a possible cerebral concussion, broken arm and broken ribs when he was struck by a car driven by Frank Ketchem, 69.

Ketchem of Pomona, told police he was unable to see when the victim's kite suddenly landed on the windshield of his car as he drove west in Mission Boulevard west of Myrtle Street.

The victim was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was reported in serious condition today in the intensive care unit.

Upland High School valedictorian Richard Lewis Farnham, left, and salutatorian Martha Johanna Alexis review speech notes just prior to commencement ceremonies Wednesday.

515 graduate at Upland High

Upland High School graduated 515 seniors in its 1976 graduation ceremonies Wednesday night. The ceremony was held in the football stadium with a capacity crowd in attendance.

UHS Principal David Cambpell delivered greetings to the graduating class and dedicated the ceremony in honor of their achievements and accomplishments during their four years at Upland High.

Valedictorian Richard Farnham delivered the only student address. In his speech, entitled "Metamorphosis," Farnham said that a "new train of thought" prevailed among today's youth.

What he called the "anti-establishment attitude" of the 1960s and early 1970s had now become a less active mood. Said Farnham, "It's called apathy."

"The real danger in apathetic thought," Farnham said, "is that you fail to see the dangers approaching. When people stop caring, America will stop growing."

"The students today have the power in their hands to change the world."

Following Farnham's speech senior class President Brandon Curry presented the class of 1976 to Jack Carnine, board of trustees member.

A short fireworks display was presented after the presentation of diplomas.

Past and future contrasted for Chaffey High graduates

Speakers at the Chaffey High School graduation program Wednesday night reflected on the past but projected on the future as they bid farewell to their high school days.

"All of us are graduating with our own experiences and memories," said Susan D. Johnson, one of three graduate speakers.

Speaking on the topic, "A New Beginning," she noted that the 802 graduating seniors came into Chaffey High School striking to find that which is hardest to find — "ourselves."

"The years we've shared have gone by quickly and in a short while we will be letting go of these years. Hold onto those memories. Use the memories to build your future. And please, take care of your future because that's where you're going to spend the rest of your lives," said Miss Johnson.

Kevin Neff, speaking on "Are You Really Glad It's Over," reminded the graduates that just because they are getting out of school doesn't mean that life is over.

"There are many more great times to come but it just won't be the same as the juvenile enthusiasm we enjoyed in high school. There won't be a lot more opportunities to let yourself go and just have a great time without worrying about consequences.

"We will have to start to enjoy a mature kind of enthusiasm after tonight," said Neff.

Joseph D. Graff Jr., speaking on "The Foundation of Our Country: Where Does It Really Begin," said that as the graduates follow their individual paths they should remember they aren't leaving their initial families (school) but adding another, the community.

"Here again in this family we must learn to work together. As young constituents and newly registered voters will be important members of our community. We should also be active members, not only enjoying the pleasures and privileges but also accepting the responsibilities of planning, developing and caring for the communities in which we will live," said Graff.

GRADUATION MARCH

The strong wind present at Chaffey High School's graduation program Wednesday night is shown by the seniors holding onto their caps. The school graduated seniors during the program held on Graber Field.

Hospital patient was suffocated

The death last Saturday evening of a 33-year-old patient at Pacific State Hospital was caused by suffocation, a preliminary coroner's office autopsy report indicated.

The victim, Maria Raquel Fontan, could not be revived after another patient was found sitting on her in the dayroom of a women's ward of the hospital at 3530 Pomona Blvd.

Police plan to wait for the final report before presenting the case to the District Attorney's Office for action. Prosecution was unlikely, however, since the patient apparently responsible for the victim's death, a 21-year-old woman, has the intelligence of a 4-year-old child, according to authorities. She was described as a passive person with no history of violence.

Graduation time for Forrest Day tots

The nursery and kindergarten classes of the Forrest Day School of Montclair will hold a combined graduation program Saturday at 3 p.m. on the north playground of the school.

Christian Academy to hold commencement

American Christian Academy of Pomona will conduct its third annual commencement exercise Friday at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of the Central Baptist Church.

A Bicentennial theme will be carried out.

Marsha Lossau will deliver the valedictorian address. The salutatorian address will be given by Kathy Mudge.

The Rev. Larry Chappell, pastor of Bethany Baptist Church of Whittier, will give the commencement sermon. The Rev. Ray Batema, pastor of Central Baptist Church, and Wayne Temple will award diplomas.

Graduating seniors are Christine Carr, Barbara Clarke, Tim Fox, Bill Mayberry, Kim Mott and Bob Ruegsegger, all of Pomona; Don Becker, JoAnn Jones, Shirley Lockhart and Rick Sherman of Montclair; Blaine Hammond, Jim Keith and Marsha Lossau of Ontario; Steve Hooge and Don Sutton of Diamond Bar; Becky Dukeshier of Claremont; Kathy Mudge of La Verne; and Janet Powell of Hacienda Heights.

Crash injures Pomona woman

A Pomona woman was hurt slightly in a traffic collision Tuesday evening on San Antonio Avenue south of Emporia Street, Ontario.

Police said a car driven by Marcia Lee Fair, 31, of 1029 E. El Dorado St., Ontario, ran into the rear of one driven by Samuel Walls Jr., 32, of 864 Ashifield St., Pomona.

Walls' passenger, Reginia Jackson, 33, of 864 Ashifield St., Pomona, was treated at Doctor's Hospital and released.

Youth injured

A La Habra youth was injured Wednesday when his motorcycle struck a fire hydrant near Chino.

Patrick Quaid, 17, was treated at the Chino General Hospital and later released.

He was driving west on Valley Springs Drive and lost control when going around a curve near Hunter Street, said highway patrolmen.

Honor at stake in Hays affair

It's Ohio's 18th Congressional District against the world, the defenders of Wayne Hays against all those hypocrites in Washington.

If sentiment around the rest of the country is running strong against the Democratic congressman because he allegedly used taxpayer funds to maintain a mistress in a style to which she evidently became too accustomed, the folks in his hometown of Flushing, Ohio, and the eight southern Ohio counties he represents are just as strong in their support of him.

It was almost a triumphal return for Hays over the Memorial Day weekend, his first trip back home since the scandal broke, and reporters trailing along could hardly find a single person with a harsh word to say about the beleaguered congressman. On the contrary, people were eager to point out all the things he has done for them, from paving their roads to building an apartment house for the elderly.

There is no question but that Hays has served his constituents well, as a representative is supposed to do. The fact that they have sent him to Washington for 14 terms is proof enough of that.

His record, in the eyes of an apparent majority of his constituents, covers a multitude of sins, including surely those which flesh is heir to, and was perhaps best summed up by one resident of Flushing:

"The experience he's got isn't worth throwing away for only $14,000 a year. Fourteen thousand is really just a drop in the bucket."

This is the salary paid to Hays' staff worker, Elizabeth Ray, for doing nothing, she says, except make herself sexually available.

But if $14,000 is an inconsequential amount in light of Hays' long service to the people he represents, would it still be true if Miss Ray had been paid $28,000, or $42,000? Where does it become more than a drop in the bucket? And after all, that $14,000 was contributed to by all the taxpayers in the country, not just those in southern Ohio.

If this is the standard by which we are to judge our national representatives, then it was most unfair to heap so much abuse on poor Richard Nixon for making illegal deductions from his income tax. The man who parted the Bamboo Curtain certainly should have been entitled to rip off the taxpayers for a few hundred thou for that valuable service alone.

Every congressman who pads his expense account, who junkets at taxpayer expense, who votes a raise for himself behind the public's back, should be able to do so with a clear conscience, so long as he devotes a reasonable amount of time to the needs of his constituents and the legislative affairs of the Republic. Every Pentagon official who accepts a favor from a defense contractor should also be excused. Any sum of money involved in a bribe or kickback is a drop in the bucket compared to maintaining the military security of the nation.

Unfortunately, the type of attitude exemplified by the loyalty shown by Ohioans to Hays, admirable as it may otherwise be, is really a slap in the face of every dedicated public servant in Washington — and there are plenty of them, even in Congress.

Why should any representative or senator or congressional aide or staffer in any department or bureau of the government try to do an honest and efficient job for the taxpayers who are paying his salary if he sees those who breach the public's trust rewarded or, at worst, receive such mild condemnation as "He's only human" or "Everybody does it"?

The French have a name for what we are talking about — "noblesse oblige" — meaning that high or noble rank carries with it the obligation of honorable behavior.

Honorable behavior. That is what is involved in the Wayne Hays affair, and nothing else.

Ah, poor ozone

Ah, the poor ozone layer. First it was manmade fluorocarbons which were breaking down the protective shield in the upper atmosphere that blocks harmful radiation from the sun. (Or which aren't breaking it down, depending upon what scientific report you've read most recently.)

Now another threat to the ozone has been discerned in the form of carbon tetrachloride, the familiar dry-cleaning compound, which is also used in fire extinguishers and for many other purposes. Like the fluorocarbons, carbon tetrachloride can trigger a chemical chain reaction which breaks apart ozone molecules.

According to Dr. Aubrey P. Altshuller of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, increasing amounts of carbon tetrachloride have been measured in the atmosphere, but the mystery is that there has not been enough of the chemical produced and used worldwide to account for it. Thus, he believes, there must be a large natural source — still unknown — of carbon tetrachloride.

"It appears urgent," says the chemist, that we find out where this extra carbon tetrachloride is coming from.

Pardon us, but we think we'll pass on this crisis. Our sense of urgency is showing signs of depletion worse than that of the much-abused ozone layer.

Teens can donate blood

Dear Editor:

As Volunteer Chairman of the Blood Program Committee of the Pomona Chapter, American National Red Cross, I would like to thank Mrs. Charles Bent, Jr. for her thoughtful comments regarding minors donating blood in California (letter to the Editor June 7, 1976).

One year after the American National Red Cross and American Association of Blood Banks agreed to accept 17-year-old blood donors the Red Cross began accepting 17-year-olds with parental consent. The change was made possible by a law passed by the California Legislature that became effective January 1, 1975. In order to give blood the young people must obtain a standard Red Cross consent form and have it signed by one parent. We are truly sorry that lack of this signed standard Red Cross consent form led to Mrs. Bent's daughter not being allowed to give blood. These forms are available at the Pomona Chapter office at 430 North Reservoir St. (phone 629-7455) and have been made available at the high schools prior to their campus bloodmobile.

Fourteen young ladies from Pomona Catholic Girls School donated blood for their classmate's father. In addition, five campuses in this area have held bloodmobiles this year: Pomona High, Garey High, Ganesha High, San Antonio High and Bonita High Schools contributing a total of 192 units of blood. We are very grateful to these young adults and hope they will continue to donate and encourage others to do likewise.

During the summer months blood donations slow down even though the need for blood remains high. I encourage all members of the community who can to donate blood. The basic requirements are: that you be in general good health, weigh at least 110 pounds and be between the ages of 17 and 65 years. Seventeen year olds may donate if accompanied by a parent or presenting a Red Cross consent form signed by a parent. Please call us at 629-7455 and we will provide a convenient appointment for you.

The Witch-Finder General

WASHINGTON — In the 1640s, an Englishman named Matthew Hopkins discovered a foolproof method of detecting witches. It consisted of some original techniques in torture. The King, grateful over the opportunity to rid his realm of witches, conferred upon Hopkins the title of "His Majesty's Witch-Finder General."

The official witch-finder hurried from place to place, often at the urgent request of the town fathers. In Essex and Suffolk alone, he tested more than 300 persons. Most failed the tests and were put to death.

Some 330 years later, an American president, Richard Nixon, appointed a modern Witch-Finder General to root out the radicals in our midst. The witch hunter, Guy Goodwin, hurried from place to place indicting radicals.

Justice Department sources say he supervised about 100 grand jury investigations in 36 states. He returned more than 400 indictments. There was one trouble. The indictments didn't stick; only about 10 per cent ended in convictions.

Many of the convictions were also for minor offenses, having nothing to do with the subversive activities Goodwin was investigating. Goodwin sought contempt and perjury indictments when he couldn't make a better case.

Under the American judicial system, grand juries are supposed to protect the people from oppressive government prosecutors. But Goodwin turned his grand juries into a coercive instrument, which he used to investigate and harass his victims. He jailed people who refused to testify. Under the law, a recalcitrant witness can be locked up until he talks or until the grand jury expires. But for punitive purposes, Goodwin extended grand jury terms so the witnesses would be kept behind bars longer.

Goodwin is an improbable Witch-Finder General, an impeccable, subdued, handsome man, with styled gray hair and a soft, almost effeminate voice. But he was relentless in investigating civil disturbances and terrorist activities. He wound up in charge of a special section, which hunted subversives for the Nixon Administration.

The country was disturbed about dissidents in the early 1970s, with good reason. Some had staged violent demonstrations, planted bombs and committed other outrages. Their purpose, they had boasted, was to overthrow the American system.

But many were peaceful, patriotic antiwar activists, who merely opposed the government's Vietnam policies. Goodwin often abused their rights, too. His most serious disservice to the nation, however, was to pervert the grand jury into a tool of government repression.

We have questioned officials at all levels of the Justice Department about Goodwin's tactics. We have also interviewed distinguished lawyers and civil libertarians. Some spoke to us on the record; others preferred to keep their remarks anonymous.

The most common complaint was that Goodwin abuses the grand jury processes, that he uses the grand jury to harass people for their political beliefs, that he brings indictments on thin evidence and then leaves it to someone else to try the cases.

Whitney North Seymour, the staid U.S. attorney in New York City, said Goodwin had "little apparent regard for the rights of witnesses." Prof. Arthur Kinoy, a famed constitutional lawyer who has reviewed Goodwin's record, called it "one of the most serious examples of repression." Some of Goodwin's colleagues refer to him as the "grand inquisitor."

Yet the Justice Department, under fairminded Atty. Gen. Edward Levi, is continuing to use the Witch-Finder General. He was recently dispatched to Richmond, Va., for example, to oversee a grand jury investigation of an FBI coverup.

Goodwin has the kind of faith in the FBI that most people reserve for their church. One of his most prized possessions is a letter of commendation from the late FBI director J. Edgar Hoover. Once, he joined an FBI squad on a 4 a.m. raid upon some Camden, N.J., draft-board saboteurs.

Goodwin seemed as eager to protect the FBI men in Richmond as he was to persecute leftists. This brought him into a head-on collision with Rodney Sager, a tough federal attorney who headed the Justice Department office in Richmond.

Sager at first tried to cooperate with Goodwin, but then sought to remove him from the FBI case. The witch hunter, believe it or not, hauled Sager himself before the grand jury for 15 hours. For Sager, this was the last straw. He worked nights to draft a long formal departmental complaint against Goodwin.

Although Justice has refused to release it and Sager won't show us a copy for fear of official reprisals, we have had access to the complaint.

It charges that Goodwin and an aide indulged in "gross professional misconduct and gross abuse of the grand jury system." In the interest of justice, added Sager, it was vital "to properly expose this flagrant abuse of the grand jury system."

Come on, learn the language

No American can be smug about it because all of us are mostly something else. My father's family fought in the American Revolution; my mother came as an infant immigrant from Denmark. All Americans — somewhere back there — are mostly something else.

But traditionally our nation's adopted sons and daughters expected the melting pot to make us "one nation, indivisible."

Eagerly, proudly, those earlier immigrants adopted their new family name: "American." They brought with them and preserved their ethnic preferences in music, the arts, including culinary artistry. What an incomparable wealth of variety our nation enjoys when it sits down to eat.

Enthusiastically, those earlier immigrants set about learning the American language, flavoring it into a symphony of charming dialects. But what's with this recent batch of adoptees demanding that we conduct our schools and print our ballots in their language? The Voting Rights Act amendments of 1975 were designed to protect the voting rights of black Americans. But the Department of Justice has decreed that, to live within the letter of the law, 30 of our 50 states must hold elections in "foreign" languages; that wherever there is an appreciable number of Filipinos, Japanese, Koreans or Spanish, ballots must be printed in the language of their previous homeland.

In some political jurisdictions, ballots will have to be printed in FIVE LANGUAGES other than our own. The resultant confusion is contrasted by the fact that Oklahoma's American Indian population holds even its tribal elections in English. Most Cherokees wouldn't understand Cherokee.

Ojibway Indians of northern Minnesota have no written language, nor have the Lumbees of North Carolina. American Indians, in other words, have embraced the American language. But some individuals in the more recently imported minorities are less malleable.

Meanwhile, as of last summer, HEW's Office for Civil Rights ordered bilingual programs for schoolchildren wherever their "primary language" is other than English. Seattle school officials were on notice that they must conduct classes in Filipino, Spanish, Japanese, Chinese, German and Korean.

Even HEW is now trying to find alternatives to this impractical edict. Ethnic loyalty has been supplanted recently with a degree of sensitivity that is more petulance than pride. When adopted Americans refuse to adapt, I am reminded of the rude husband who persists in calling his second wife by his first wife's name.

Just in jest

Some thoughts on modern day living.

* * *

People who do nothing in this workaday world are usually regarded with suspicion by folks who do something. But the same is not necessarily true of things. Often an inanimate object manages to prosper by just standing around and waiting. Last year parking meters in the United States grossed $252 million.

Most women are accident prone and there's one accident virtually all of them seem to have in common. It is called a MAN.

Outrageous public pay

By EARL G. WATERS

Editors, in the belief, undoubtedly correct, that they are more in tune with newspaper readers than are the writers, frequently complain when a scribe hammers away too often on a single subject. It is their view that readers get sick and tired of reading about the same things.

That may be true. But from this vantage point they haven't become sick enough of reading about the excessive salaries paid to public officials. If they had they would rise up in organized wrath to bring an end to it.

What provokes this writer into haranguing the readers with more about the lavish manner in which those who serve the public reward themselves for the privilege of holding office is the recently released survey of salaries of county officials.

Compiled by Alameda County's Taxpayers Association, the study reports on 22 elective and appointive positions, county by county, throughout the state.

Not unexpectedly, Los Angeles County, whose vast size makes the distance between those entrenched and the voters almost immune to citizen reaction, pays its officials the highest of all others. In that megalopolis even the county personnel director is paid more than the governor, along with many others whose salaries range up to $64,000 a year. These include the health administrator, county counsel, coroner and welfare director among others. One wonders how someone administering a welfare program can relate to and understand the problems of the needy when he sits fat on an annual salary of $57,000?

But, as the survey shows, the Los Angeles situation isn't isolated. The same prodigious salary levels extend to those in other counties and cities, school districts and special districts as well.

What compounds it is that each official compares his salary with the other guy and all are constantly jockeying to get as much or more than the fellow in the next county. It creates an unending spiral, fosters inflation and is breaking the taxpayers backs.

Somewhere along the line, somehow there has to be a halt. Clearly the remedy rests with the legislature. It has the authority to establish uniform salaries for all local officials at reasonable levels. That it has the right and duty to do this is inherent in the fact it is taxing the people to pay the salaries.

For it is the state funds, through subventions to local government, including the schools, which makes possible the payment of the outrageous salaries. If local governments had to depend solely upon their local revenues to support their exorbitant payrolls they would all have been broke quicker than New York City.

C. Russell King, a Santa Paula attorney, disturbed about the pay trends in government recently exploded: "Let's face the fact that it is our government, not a foreign government, which is the most immediate and greatest threat to our capitalistic system and to this republic.

"By helping themselves in salary and buying the votes of the non-productive members of our society through expenditures of large sums for "study" and "help" programs, government is squeezing the middle class out of existence. Despite large increases in salary and retirement benefits for government employes, all government has become less responsible and less responsive to the productive taxpayer."

The argument is always that government has to pay the high salaries "in order to get qualified people." It would be interesting to put that saw to the acid test by limiting top government salaries to $25,000 a year. With the retirement and other fringe benefits, including job security, they would still be upper crust in a society where the majority of those paying taxes support families on less than half of that.

Ann Landers

Men in ladies' clothes—sick

Dear Ann Landers: I have read many letters in your column about men who enjoy wearing women's clothing. You seem to have the idea they are "peculiar" or sick. Why?

Everywhere you look you see women wearing men's clothes — trousers, vests, shirts, ties, coats, shoes, even hats. No one suggests that these women are strange. In fact, they are considered fashionable.

When did it become acceptable for women to dress like men, and why the discrimination against men by members of the opposite sex?

How about bringing THIS out of the closet? — The Time Is Now

Dear Now: Women started to dress like men during World War II when they were doing men's work on the assembly lines. Rosie the Riveter couldn't very well climb on beams and girders wearing a skirt and high heels. Pants and boots made a lot more sense.

Rosie grew to like pants because they were practical, comfortable, and different. She never gave them up.

Men who enjoy dressing like women do so not for any practical reason, but because they like to pretend they ARE women. Invariably, they start by wearing women's underwear in secret. This is sick. If a female got her jollies wearing jockey shorts, men's sox and garters, I'd say SHE was sick, too.

Dear Ann Landers: I found the letter by "Blemished" interesting. Why didn't you tell her the problem isn't on her face but in her head?

I have three birthmarks on my right cheek. All have said, "When are you going to have those things removed?" My answer is, "What is it to YOU? It's MY face." That stops them cold.

For anyone who has kinky hair, crooked teeth, or an oversized nose, I have a message. It's what's inside that counts. My mother taught me this when I was a young child. One of her favorite sayings was, "You can't judge a book by its cover." — I'm O.K.

Dear O.K.: It's good to think well of one's self but I don't agree with your philosophy.

One who judges a book by its cover may be misled — but it's dumb to settle for an unattractive cover on a good book. These days no one has to go through life with kinky hair, crooked teeth or an oversized nose — unless they want to.

Your answer to people who mention your birthmarks smacks of belligerence, almost as if you are keeping them to show people you don't care what they think. If, however, you insist on hanging onto it, for whatever reason, it's your business.

Dear Ann Landers: You've printed several letters about relatives who tickle children "all in fun." May I comment?

As a student of Oriental history and Far Eastern culture I can tell you that tickling was a form of torture several centuries back. Any pediatrician will verify the fact that prolonged tickling of children can cause hysterics and even convulsions. The expression "tickled to death" is more than just a phrase.

I hope your advice to "cut it out" does some good. — Vallejo, Cal.

Dear V.: If my advice doesn't persuade them, perhaps your letter will. Thanks for writing.

NO WOMEN

Women are not allowed to shoot marbles in the International Marble Championship contests at Tinsley Green, England. It's not that women don't know how to shoot marbles well enough to qualify. It's that the officer of the world marble Board of Control, Sean O'Gearry, has barred them by executive decree on the grounds they look ridiculous on their hands and knees.

The tiller of the ancient Viking ship always pointed to the right of the stern. The man who controlled the ship sat on a bench called a steer board. Eventually, that came to be called the starboard. Because the tiller stuck out so far, the ship was always put into dock against the other side which therefore was called the port. That's all our Language Man has to report today. More later.

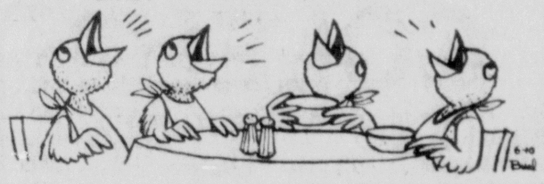
Baby birds eat, eat and eat



DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm feeding a family of orphaned nestling birds and spending practically all day doing it, and little esle. They're always hungry. How often do babies need to be fed? How much food does one baby need in a day? — F.M.

DEAR F. M.: Some species of young can consume their body weight in food daily. Many nestlings eat at least half their wieght in foofd daily. Parents may proffer substantial sized meals every half-hour to an hour or so apart. Others make it on mini-meal-a-minute offerings, and most on somewhere in between.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Her first owner was moving, and we're taking rose over. She's a really nice dog but has quite a few bad habits. Is there any hope of getting her over some of them? All of them? — D.F.

DEAR D. F.P Undesirable habits can be uprooted with consistent. persistent training which includes providing desirable substitutes for the unwanted behavioral patterns Try to avoid reinforcing any undesirable habits, but at the same time concentrate on the most important problem and work that through first. A garden of good habits is considerably easier to grow if you don't have it clogged with bad ones to begin with, but it can be done. Plant the proper seeds, apply tender loving care, weed consistently and Second Hand Rose's garden of good habits should bloom, in time.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm a cat breeder and I know I'm not the only one confused about leukemia. I know it's cat cancer of the blood. The most confusing part to me is some veterinarians will say the cat died of leukemia, and some will say the cat died of lymphosarcoma. (Please correct the spelling if you publish this letter.) Now, these two terms mean the same thing, don't they? Or do they? — T.W.

DEAR T.W.: There are four known forms of feline leukemia. One of these, leukemic leukemia, refers to those with a high blood cell count where abnormal (cancerous) cells are found in the blood. On the other hand, lymphosarcoma or (brace yourself for this one) lymphositic aleukemic leukemia is a form in which the abnormal white blood cells are found not in the blood, but in other body tissues including lymph nodes, bone marrow, and various organs and tissues throughout the body.

Sister is coming for a visit

My sister is coming for a visit next week.

We have grown up together, shared the same bed, the same parents, and eaten off the same ice cream cone. We're very close.

I do not want her to know that I have poker chips in my planters and winter ironing hidden in a beer cooler.

I've broken my back to make this house look like people have never lived here. For the first time in four years (her last visit) the dining-room table is visible.

I don't know how the White House handles state visits, but I work from a Master Plan. Weeks ago, I made a list of things that needed to be done according to priorities.

1. Get the Christmas candle off the hall tabel in the entranceway.
2. Throw away junk mail on back of commode.
3. Get the dog laundered.
4. Gather together silverware that matches. Offer rewards.
5. Replace pocketbook of "Valley of the Dolls" on coffee table with new historical hard-cover.
6. Remove light bulb in the oven.
7. Take Colonel Sanders phone number off bulletin board and replace with bread recipes.
8. Buy children new underwear and shoes.
9. Buy size 10 bathrobe and offer to loan it to her while she is here.
10. Harvest houseful of dead plants and replace with new ones three hours before she arrives.

Call it pride. Call it pressure from the Board of Health, but I want things to be perfect.

My husband found me trying to get the ironing board down. "Help me with this," I said.

"What are you trying to do?" he asked.

"Take this thing down. It is collapsible, isn't it?"

"Haven't you ever taken it down before?"

"Never."

"Maybe there's a release here somewhere. Here we go. Now, where do you want it?"

"I don't know. Wherever people put these things. Try under the bed with the electric football and the Easter baskets."

"Now what?"

"Whatever's on the list. Me? I have to work on my thin wish."

Wives' tale about wine

DEAR DR. LAMB — Several of my friends insist they have read that a small glass of wine with meals will help lose weight as well as get more nutrition from your food intake. Is there any truth to this?

DEAR READER — None. This sounds like one of the innumerable reasons people who like wine or other alcoholic beverages offer to justify their habit.

I can't say your friends haven't read such a ridiculous statement. There are so many "untruths" and misinformation circulated that you can find fantastic statements in print: The fact that something is printed does not make it so. I only need remember the "drinking man's diet" to think of one of the many unsound ideas presented to the public.

Wine contains calories, mostly in accordance to the amount of alcohol it contains. The alcohol stimulates most people's appetite while decreasing their inhibitions or will power. The common result then is eating more calories than you need and you know what that leads to.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer, so you can have figures on alcohol and calorie contents and the effects of alcohol. Others who want this information can forward 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a mastectomy nine months ago. I am 62. What bothers me is my arm and hand swell so badly. They get sore from the swelling. My doctor said it is natural that this happens. But I don't think they should swell so much, almost twice the size. I thought if I got some information from someone else about it I would feel better. I was told the removal of the glands from under my arm caused it. Also would eating sweets cause it?

DEAR READER — Your doctor has told you the truth. Most people think of the circulation as the arteries and veins filled with blood but there is still another type of circulation, the lymphatic system.

The lymphatic system is widespread throughout the body and is connected to all those lymph glands called nodes. These are under the arm, in the neck (which swell when you have a sore throat), in the groin and inside the body.

There is a clear fluid material circulated inside the lymph vessels that connect the lymph glands. This fluid, called lymph, helps to drain fluid from your tissues. Finally, all of the lymph vessels connect to one large vessel that empties into one of the large veins leading to the heart.

When you have breast surgery and the surgeon must remove lymph glands under the arm the small lymph vessels are tied off and cannot drain normally. This causes the swelling. It is similar to blocking a vein and causing swelling. Because lymph contains no red blood cells this does not cause the same marked discoloration.

In time, as the blocked lymph vessels establish new drainage the swelling of the arm diminishes. The swelling has no relation to eating sweets.

"Violence justifies counter-violence. Since we live in violence, and the violence of the establishment is so great, so-called subversive violence is sometimes the only form of self-defense."

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may try to impose your views on an unsympathetic listener today. This person is slow to anger, but such an intrusion could really get her steamed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's not a good day for you to discuss budget matters with your mate. Each party will probably feel the other is wasting too much money.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Agreements you make today will be tough to hammer out. It's probable no one will really be satisified with the terms, making prospects of survival dim.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be sensible about health matters today. If you know there's something you shouldn't be eating, drinking or doing, pass it up.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Complications may arise between you and a valued friend today. The problem could be magnified beyond its significance if it becomes a clash of wills.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be too heavy-handed at home today. A family member may respond bitterly to over-discipline. If you want a trouble-free teepee, tread lightly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A good debate may be a learning experience to you as well as a pleasant pastime. But your opponent may respond in a deadly serious vein.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22- This is hardly the time to take on new obligations if old ones are still hanging fire. You'll only overburden your budget.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Handle close associates with extreme tact and diplomacy today. A few wrong moves or thoughtless words could swiftly shatter the existing harmony.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pace yourself wisely today and don't take on more work than you can handle. When the whistle blows, pack up your tools and take off.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually you're a very gregarious person. If you feel more like being a loner today, don't force yourself to mingle.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Without wanting to be, you may find yourself the center of attention today. People will be looking for chinks in your armor, rather than things to admire.

Your Birthday June 11, 1976:

Select your associates carefully this coming year, for they can make or break you. The proper allies will greatly enhance your chances of success.

The pair of Nobody and Nameless finished dead last among the 40 entrants in the Cavendish invitational tournament. Here is one hand that really helped them to get that result.

At practically every table North and South bid to six or seven clubs and collected all 13 tricks if allowed to play the hand. But about half the time East and West took advantage of the favorable vulnerability to sacrifice in spades. Six spades went for 700 or seven spades for 900, since all spade declarers handled the heart suit by leading low hearts a couple of times and dropping South's ace.

It took Nobody and Nameless six rounds of bidding and almost 10 minutes to get to seven clubs. It took good old Nameless, sitting South, just 20 seconds to throw the grand slam away.

He cashed his ace of diamonds at trick two. Then he ruffed a spade in dummy and played the king of diamonds. East ruffed and South overruffed, but now he had to lose a heart which he could have sluffed.

Tough luck, but avoidable. South could afford one round of trumps before trying to cash that king of diamonds and that would have pulled East's tooth.

Ask the Jacobys

A plaintive letter from Nevada asks the penalty for going down 10 tricks redoubled and vulnerable.

The answer is 5,800 points. We regret that our reader did not give us either the bidding or the play.

A WAITING GAME — Katherine Hadow, left, of Crozet, Va., and Polo Sengupta, of Athens, Ga., wait their turns to compete in the 1976 National Spelling Bee in Washington Wednesday.

Caril Ann Fugate served 18 years

Murderess to be paroled

YORK, Neb. (AP) — Caril Ann Fugate will be released from prison after serving 18 years for murder but her desire to settle down in obscurity and perhaps get married and raise children may be just a dream.

Her chances for anonymity on the outside were threatened Tuesday when the chairman of Nebraska's Parole Board, John Greenholtz, said Miss Fugate would report to a parole officer in St. Johns, Mich., after she is freed.

Greenholtz' revelation of Miss Fugate's parole address may have upset a plan to set Miss Fugate up with a "new identity."

His comment was the first indication of where Miss Fugate is going.

"I do not wish to give interviews today or in the future," said Miss Fugate as she appeared before the board.

"I'd like to just settle down, get married, have a couple kids — you know, dust the house, clean the toilet — you know, just an ordinary little dumpy housewife. That's all I want to be — wash the socks, you know, burn the toast."

The board's vote was 4-1 to grant Miss Fugate's request for parole. She will be released June 20, apparently for the new start in Michigan.

About 30 persons attended the hearing. The board's decision brought applause.

Now 32, Miss Fugate accompanied Charles Starkweather, the red-haired mass killer, on a rampage in 1958 that left 10 dead. Starkweather was the last man executed in Nebraska's electric chair — 17 years ago this month.

Miss Fugate said Starkweather forced her to go-ing with him, but Starkweather swore that his companion, then 14, was a willing accomplice in as many as six of the murders. Starkweather's victims included Miss Fugate's mother, step-father and 2-year-old half-sister.

She was convicted of first-degree murder in connection with her part in the death of one of Starkweather's victims.

Wearing a simple white dress and white shoes, Miss Fugate told the board Tuesday that she has paid her debt to society.

A lifetime of stares by the curious is over

Looks at her new face—can be happy now

NEW YORK (AP) — Ida Hays stole a glance in the mirror, her first since they took the bandages off, and laughed for joy.

She had made a pact with herself not to look until the swelling went down but she could not resist. After all, what she beheld was not just a 15year-old girl with a new face but Ida Hays with a new life.

She studied the face: "I like it." and contemplated the life: "Now no one will stare at me, I will be happy."

Ida Hays is the celebrated girl from La Grande, Ore., who underwent a remarkable operation May 19 to repair a face deformed from birth. Interviewed Tuesday for the first time since the surgery, she pronounced the operation an unqualified success.

"Not just for me but for other people," she said. "A boy at the hospital has the same problem I had but was afraid of the operation. Now he's going ahead with it because of me. Isn't that great?"

Ida's problem was that her eyes were separated by twice the normal width. In a 10-hour operation, a team at New York University Hospital reduced the space from slightly more than two inches to slightly less than one, rebuilt Ida's nose, and filled the resulting gap between her eye sockets and temples with bone taken from her hip. It was the most severe case of orbital hypertelorism, as it is called, in the experience of the hospital's Institute of Reconstructive Plastic Surgery.

Ida's deformity was not, of course, her only problem, but it was the cause of all the others.

Once again in the company of her parents at their hotel near the hospital, and in a truly ebullient mood, Ida could reflect with equanimity on a childhood of stares and taunts now, she believes, behind her.

"My first day at prekindergarten was the first time I realized I was different," she said. "I came home and cried.

"When we moved from Seattle to La Grande I was in the sixth grade and went through the same thing. One boy was particularly mean. He ran through the halls making fun of me.

"Every day, or nearly every day, I would come home, go to my room, turn up the record player as loud as it would go, lie down on my bed with my cat Stripey, and block out the whole world."

Ida's parents, Jacquie and Bill Hays, nodded knowingly at the memory. The only thing that changed over the years, they said, was Ida's choice of music. Her melancholy behavior lasted from Jack and Jill songs through teenage rock.

"Sometimes she sang along with the music," Mrs. Hays said. "Other times she cried."

Ida's mother had resolved from the start that Ida's life would be as near to normal as possible.

"I knew even before I saw her for the first time that something was wrong," Mrs. Hays said. "They brought the newborn babies to the mothers and mine was the only one covered with a blanket. The nurse drew a curtain around my bed, handed her to me, and left.

"I looked at my baby and said, 'You're mine and I love you to pieces.' Then I cried. When the nurse came to take her, I wouldn't let her go. I held her and said, 'Darling, some day we are going to find out why.'"

That has been the quest of Bill and Jacquie Hays ever since, and of Ida.

When the baby was two weeks old, mother and daughter went through a genetics clinic at the University of Washington, but learned nothing. Over the years they went to other hospitals, other universities. Information was scarce.

As Ida grew, fortified by parental love, she learned to deal with her problem.

"Any time somebody would stare or make a remark, well, that was their problem. I tried to pretend they weren't there. But sometimes I made a remark back, like stick it in your ear."

"Ida!" her mother said.

About a year ago the Hays' search for answers began to gather steam. A vocational rehabilitation counselor gave them hope, so did a teacher. So did Ida's orthodontist, who steered her to New York University Medical Center's plastic surgery institute, one of only a handful equipped for her need.

"The doctors told me I should think it over," Ida said. "They told me there were risks, that I might lose my senses of taste and smell. I told them I had thought it over. They asked me if I had any questions. I told them I had one: when?"

Ida lost neither taste nor smell. The danger had been in temporarily repositioning her brain, to give the doctors room to work. Her brain, by all outward evidence, is as keen as ever.

But there was a question, a big one. Such operations are expensive, about $6,000 plus the air fare and hotel expenses.

That's when Ida found out how many friends she had.

All across La Grande, population 11,000, fundraising enterprises sprouted. Bake sales for Ida. Car washes for Ida. A Grande Ronde River Raft Race for Ida. A yard sale at McCallum's Mobile Homes for Ida. Ida's pals in La Grande High School, the Rainbow Girls, collected money. The Jaycees held a car smashing — two-bits a whack with a sledge hammer, for Ida.

Out of the best instincts of small-town America, the money was raised.

Slow learners present new kind of problem

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

They are not blind, but they cannot see.

They are not deaf, but they cannot hear.

They are not retarded, but they cannot seem to learn.

They are children of normal intelligence who have learning disabilities, invisible handicaps that obstruct their learning, thwart their social relations and can frustrate them forever.

Katherine is a whiz at math but cannot read. Richard can read but can't do simple arithmetic. Marian cannot read or write or add or sit still. George can't do anything right, he's clumsy, rowdy and a troublemaker.

At 10, John can't use scissors or draw a straight line. Phyllis can't tell the difference between big and small blocks. Ron can't put a simple puzzle together. He cries and rages in frustration.

Each child has a constellation of problems. Each has learning disabilities, an umbrella term covering a wide range of neurological problems, sometimes called brain injury or neurological impairment — and sometimes overlooked.

They cannot be "cured" as a sick person can be cured. But they can be helped and taught to compensate for their weaknesses, if they are identified at an early age.

"These are children who are bright enough to learn, but who don't because of some inbuilt weakness, a difficulty in the central nervous system's ability to process information," says Dr. Howard L. Millman, director of psychological services and research at Children's Village at Dobbs Ferry, N.Y.

"There is no question that these children are slipping through our fingers and being miscategorized. There are kids who are misidentified, treated in an inappropriate manner and are miserable."

Experts say undiagnosed learning disabilities have caused many children to be labeled slow learners, lazy, unmotivated, retarded, emotionally disturbed or just rotten kids.

They hasten to add that not every slow learner or awkward child has a learning disability, and there is considerable controversy over what learning disability is.

The federal government estimates that 1 per cent to 3 per cent of the school age population has learning disabilities severe enough to require special education. Estimates of all kinds of learning disabilities run as high as 40 per cent of the school population.

John, 18, in the Minneapolis metropolitan area, knows what it's like to stumble and fall in reading, writing and arithmetic. Speaking very slowly, John, who didn't want his last name used, tells what it's like to be a statistic:

"School and everything is like going up a steep hill. The other kids can take the ski tow, but I have to crawl on hands and knees. I struggle twice as hard, and it drives me crazy.

"The teasing was the worst thing, and because I was awkward, nobody wanted to play with me," says John who now stands 6-foot-3 and feels it his mission to explain learning disability.

"We are not freaks," he says over and over. "We are just normal kids who have a slower learning rate."

John is luckier than many children with learning disabilities because he was finally identified and received some help.

But many others like him are not spotted, and the deficiency eats away at their self-image and taints every day with doubt.

Many children give up, drop out and become delinquent. A few with undiagnosed learning disabilities have even been committed to institutions for the retarded or emotionally disturbed.

"Learning disability is a very real probem with very few real answers," says Dr. Harvey Asch, director of the learning disability center at New York Medical College at New York Metropolitan Hospital.

Early detection and treatment is very important, Dr. Asch says, especially before the basic learning problems are compounded by emotional problems and feelings of failure.

"But there are no magic cures," he says. "We know all the signs, but it's still a mystery. We don't really know why it happens, and we don't know precisely what to do. Sometimes it works, sometimes it doesn't."

Across the country, school districts vary greatly in handling these children. Some have intensive screening and special education. Some have nothing. Private treatment is very costly and for some, prohibitive.

"Legislation says that learning disabled children have the right to appropriate education, but when parents want to enroll them, it's not there," says Eli Tash, president of the Association for Children With Learning Disabilities. "There aren't enough competent teachers and not enough funding."

Tash estimates that only about half of the identified learning disabled children are in appropriate programs, adding: "The other half is not being served, and there's a whole group that hasn't been identified at all."

He says that nationwide there is no significant program for learning disabled children in preschool, junior high or high school.

Learning disability often is a subtle problem and difficult to spot, because there is no obvious physical handicap, like deafness.

But learning disabilities can be spotted if parents and teachers look for clusters of symptoms: children who function with their peers in some skills but far below in others, like the children who can read and write but cannot grasp numbers. There's a gulf between their potential and their functioning.

Many also are uncoordinated or hyperactive. Many are socially backward and inept.

"There is no single test," says Dr. Asch. "We must look at the total child. At an early age it is easier to isolate. At an older age, almost all kids with learning disabilities have developed emotional problems.

"Most of these children can be taught to compensate for their weaknesses," Dr. Asch says. "But by the time a kid is 12 or 13, so much damage has been done to his idea of himself that it's hard to ever compensate.

"These children frequently live down to expectations."

Frustrated by school and social failures, 10-year-old Tina (not her real name) was well on her way to juvenile court, until she was helped with her learning disability.

She was a terrible student, impulsive, hyperactive, completely absentminded and a troublemaker. Her parents humiliated her, calling her a bull in a china shop, saying she would lose her head if it weren't attached. Other kids rejected her and called her names.

Parents and teachers said she was lazy and punished her. They took privileges away.

Tina stopped trying in school. She became belligerent and aggressive. If someone brushed against her, she struck back. Failing in school and with her peers, she found acceptance among delinquent youths.

She began shoplifting and going for joy rides in stolen cars.

In desperation, her parents took her to a clinic where she underwent a battery of tests which uncovered the basic problems of perception which gave her trouble with reading.

Tina's schoolwork and behavior improved with special tutoring and counseling. Her parents and teachers stopped punishing her and started praising her for small achievements.

Robert, 15, didn't slip through society's fingers. About four years ago Robert (not his real name) was diagnosed as having learning disability: minimal brain dysfunction.

The initial examination showed that Robert had above average intelligence, but he had perceptual problems and severe reading difficulties. His coordination was bad. He couldn't hop on one foot.

He couldn't copy simple designs, like a line of dots or a circle touching a diamond. Robert's designs were distorted.

He was socially backward. He mumbled and shouted without reason.

But Robert comes from an upper middle-class New York family that can afford pediatricians, neurologists, psychologists and special education teachers.

He is doing better in school now; his reading and comprehension are better, but he still can't organize himself. His social graces are improving. He is beginning to date.

Bioglass may prevent limb amputations

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A glass-like material that fuses directly into bone could lead to saving thousands of limbs now amputated because they aren't suitable for artificial bone implants, a researcher says.

Dr. Larry L. Hench reported Monday that artificial bone attached to the real thing with a substance called bioglass has been successfully tested in animals and the results show "great promise" for human use.

Hench, director of the Biomedical Engineering Program at the University of Florida and the inventor of bioglass, said human trials are under way in Europe and are likely to start in the United States within two years.

Addressing a symposium sponsored by the American Chemical Society and 12 other scientific organizations, Hench said bioglass was used successfully to install hip joints in sheep, artificial leg bones in dogs and parts of jawbones in baboons.

One of the most exciting possibilities for bioglass is to bind replacement sections to long bones, as in legs and arms, when a seriously damaged section has been removed, Hench said.

It is extremely difficult to replace such sections because the forces they must withstand in use were too much for normal attachment methods, he said. As a result, otherwise healthy limbs often must be amputated.

The bioglass bond is strong enough to overcome such difficulties, he added.

Bioglass is similar to window glass, but contains carefully formulated amounts of certain elements — chiefly calcium and phosphorus — which make it resemble hydroxyapatite, the principal mineral in bone.

This chemical closeness results in the interaction between the artificial implant and bone when brought into contact, and the two gradually fuse together, said Hench.

This interaction forms a layer of byproducts that eventually stops the chemical reaction and prevents the bioglass from being totally absorbed by the bone, he said.

"Bioglass has the capability of forming a true bond with bone whereas normal (bone) adhesive agents don't — they just cement," Hench said in an interview.

"With time, the normal cement-bone interface begins to break down and lose strength, and live bone actually can be killed in applying cement.

"We feel that long term stability is more likely to be achieved with bioglass," he concluded.

Hench said bioglass probably would prove most useful as a coating for artifical bone, permitting bone and replacement parts to bind together in much the same way as natural bone knits together after a fracture, he added.

Hench says there appears to be no rejection problem with bioglass, probably because the chemical interaction with bone is such that the connecting layer incorporates organic material from living cells in the bone.

Farmers becoming an 'endangered species?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State Sen. Clare Berryhill, R-Shingle Springs, has formed a political action committee to help keep farmers from becoming an "endangered species."

Berryhill said Tuesday the Agricultural Political Action Committee — Agripac — will make contributions to political candidates who are sympathetic with the farmers' plight.

He hopes to have $30,000 to $50,000 to distribute before the November elections, but he said no money went into Tuesday's primary.

Records show collections as $10,603 through May 24, and expenses $1,965.

Himself a grape and almond grower, Berryhill has written potential contributors that farmers "are becoming an endangered species due to the threat of legislators...influenced by Cesar Chavez and his United Farm Workers Union, who are willing to sacrifice the small farmer as well as the corporate farmer for the socalled "good of the people'."

Berryhill's letter said that "organized labor has been able to financially support the election of legislators sympathetic to their causes. For far too long, we in agriculture have avoided the political arena through naive ideas that fair play and high ideals would prevail.

"And we have seen, time and time again, legislators elected who have eventually cast votes detrimental to the best interests of agriculture."

Poly comes home with NCAA crown

Broncos set records

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Thursday, June 10, 1976

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Cal Poly coach John Scolinos reigns as living proof that nice guys CAN finish first.

The Bronco skipper and his team won two things here Wednesday night at Lamphier Park — Poly's first-ever NCAA national title and the hearts of Springfield fans.

Poly chalked up the Division II championship with a strangely anticlimactic 17-3 shelling of Southern Illinois-Edwardsville. The SIU squad appeared to be still in a daze from Tuesday's last-inning 6-5 Bronco victory, and collapsed totally in a nine-run Poly seventh inning Wednesday. That inning nailed down the national title.

The victorious Broncos will be arriving at Ontario International Airport at 2:36 a.m. Friday morning on an American Airlines flight. They will be carrying the NCAA championship plaque back home to Pomona with them.

Scolinos' crew was sporting a narrow 3-1 lead into the fateful seventh, but eight hits and three crucial SIU errors later, Poly had taken an insurmountable 12-1 advantage.

Five more runs paraded across in the eighth, leaving no doubt as to which team would take home the Division II title plaque.

A 30-year veteran of the college coaching ranks, the national crown won Wednesday was Scolinos' first ever, and the first in Cal Poly Pomona athletic history.

For the personable Poly skipper, the triumph was a personal vindication of his coaching methods and life style.

"Don't give in," became as much a motto to live by as to play by for the 1976 Broncos, and it was never more evident than in the tourney.

Poly overcame an opening round 11-inning loss to Livingston University to win four straight contests en route to capturing the Division II World Series.

As has been the case in the final two months of a remarkable 40-27-1 season, the Bronco heroes were numerous Wednesday night.

"Everybody did his job in this series," Scolinos noted. "This is a once-in-a-lifetime thrill for me and it was even sweeter since I was able to play all 21 of our guys in the series and they all came through."

Ken Hellyer and fellow outfielder Dennis Sherow led the Bronco attack in their big comeback and both won all-tourney recognition for their efforts.

Hellyer copped tourney Most Valuable Player honors with an incredible week. With four more hits Wednesday, he averaged a cool .636 for the tourney, picking up 14 hits in 22 trips to the plate. He also made several sparkling plays in the outfield.

Sherow topped the list of heroes in Wednesday's finale. A second-round pick of the Expos in the recent Major League draft, Sherow increased his bargaining power by cracking out a tourney record six hits in six at-bats.

He had four singles, a double and a triple and scored four times in the one-sided win. His three-bagger in the seventh ignited the rally which was the beginning of the end for SIU's title hopes.

Joining Hellyer and Sherow on the all-tourney team was hurler Bruce MacPherson, who pitched 20 innings in three appearances and beat SIU Tuesday to force Wednesday's contest.

Wednesday's championship was a close one for six innings, Poly clinging to a 3-1 lead.

However, Sherow led off the top of the seventh by ripping a long triple to right-center. That sent Cougar coach Roy Lee to the mound to remove starter Stan Osterbur and bring in reliever Jerry Deml.

A key error by shortstop Dave Schaake on Clay Harris' grounder allowed Sherow to score and made it 4-1. That miscue was the first of three by SIU in the frame.

Hellyer kept things going with a sharp single to right. Kevin Jenkins laid down a perfect bunt and beat it out to load the sacks. Ray Pekarcik then lined a single off rightfielder Mike Brown's glove, scoring Harris and Hellyer.

Another error by shortstop Schaake on Dal Briggs' grounder brought in Jenkins and made it 7-1. Lon Brucegard brought home Pekarcik from third with a sacrifice fly, and Monty Cloward KOed Deml by whacking an RBI triple off the boards in left.

Cougar southpaw Steve Ashby took over on the hill, but promptly uncorked a wild pitch to plate Cloward with the 10th Poly run. Alex Torres fouled out for the second out, but Sherow followed by picking up his second hit of the frame.

That brought up Harris again, and he unloaded on an Ashby delivery, bombing it out to right-center for his third homer in two days.

The Bronco lead stretched to 17-1 in the eighth on four walks, Sherow's sixth hit of the contest and Hellyer's booming triple to center.

The Broncs settled for those 17 runs on 19 hits, giving them 45 runs on 68 hits in the five playoff games. In contrast, Poly pitchers allowed only seven earned runs in the five outings.

Mike Regus' outstanding mound effort was lost in the Bronco scoring shuffle. The senior righthander turned in the top pitching performance of the tourney, stopping the potent SIU attack cold. Regus surrendered but two hits and one run in eight innings, fanning four and walking three, to score his second World Series win.

Tom Rosenstein finished up in the ninth, allowing a two-out, two-run homer to all-tourney first baseman Bill Lee (son of Cougar coach Roy Lee).

Rosenstein then ended it, getting Don Broadway to tap to third sacker Harris whose throw to John Turriff brought a jubilant finish to the Broncos' 68-game season.

Poly had taken an early 2-0 lead, as Cloward's two-out drive to center was misplayed by Cougar Jack Scarborough into a triple, Jenkins and Biggs coming home on the play.

SIU looked like it would make a game of it in the last of the second. Rightfielder Brown (another all-tourney pick) led off the frame and was hit by a Regus delivery. Lee followed with a long fly to right, which Hellyer gloved but dropped upon impact with the wooden outfield fence. The play was scored as a double, Brown coming in all the way from first to make it 2-1.

Cougar starter Osterbur kept Poly at bay until the fifth, when Sherow singled, moved to third on Hellyer's single and came home on Jenkins' sacrifice fly.

It stayed 3-1 until Poly exploded for 14 runs in the seventh and eighth. From there, it was just a question of how long it would take for the Broncs to wrap up the win and the national title.

The Broncos, with 15 seniors on their 21-man roster, had to relish every minute of the championship contest. Long after the last out, Poly players and coaches lingered on the Lamphier Park turf, congratulating each other and chatting with the local fans and media representatives.

For John Scolinos, after a 30-year wait, you know he was wishing that the moment and the scene would last forever.

UCR fans want football

Riverside is up in arms about losing its college football team.

Football fans in Riverside are putting on a drive to reinstate the sport at UC Riverside.

It takes awhile for the idea of having no football sink in. When UCR announced it was dropping football last December, it was still too early for people to panic.

But with the gridiron campaign only a few short months away, something had better be done fast.

It's too late to do anything about football in 1976 but Riversiders are hoping to raise $50,000. University officials have indicated that figure is a working one to bring back football on the Division III — no scholarship — level.

There's no question football is the main sport at most college campuses and the lack of a program can hurt an entire athletic program.

Bob Devaney, the Nebraska athletic director and former successful Cornhuskers' football coach, was the main speaker at a recent luncheon of the UCR Boosters.

The football program is the thing that stands out front," he said. "Whatever degree of program you want to start, get it started."

"The idea is not to make a million dollars a year, but to give the school an identity — keep it in the public eye," Devaney said. "Maybe football can go again here in 1977 — maybe by missing the '76 season people will want it more, will realize what they're missing."

UCR's action was especially surprising since the Highlanders have produced back-to-back championship teams. But the attendance was still nothing to brag about.

Maybe what happened at Riverside should be a lesson to people in this area.

None of our local colleges have discussed dropping football but it's always a possibility as long as public support is lacking.

The time to give some backing is when things are still going rather than wait when it has died.

Money is not the only consideration at UCR. The university is also interested in the evolvement of community support.

"We want people," says Ron Rose, president of the UCR Boosters Club. "More than the money, we want the people."

While there is no question athletics is only part of the scene of a university, it is an important one.

The public relations generated through sports can't be bought.

For instance, the athletic successes of Cal Poly, La Verne, Claremont-Mudd and Pomona-Pitzer have more than paid off in national recognition.

And when those schools do something to make the national wires, the names of our cities are recognized throughout the county.

Being located in the Los Angeles market has its advantages and drawbacks. But there is still room and a big enough population base for the local schools to attack the following.

Let's just hope the UCR situation never happens here. If it does, people will miss it.

Dodgers survive scare

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — Burt Hooton's victory leap was just a little premature but at least he could still smile about it afterwards.

Hooton jumped a bit when he thought centerfielder Dusty Baker caught the final out of a near-perfect game Wednesday night but it wasn't so.

"I was ready to greet catcher Steve Yeager but I noticed that he wasn't coming," Hooton said. "Then I noticed the umpires ruled safe."

Baker said the ball hit by Tim McCarver trickled out of his glove when he hit the ground and McCarver ended up at second base with a double.

Hooton then lost his control and by the time the dust had cleared, Charlie Hough came out of the bullpen to get the dangerous Dick Allen to ground out with the bases full to preserve the Dodgers' 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

It was a bizarre ninth inning after Hooton owned the Phils for 8 2/3 innings. Until McCarver broke the spell, Hooton had retired the minimum number of 26 straight batters in an awesome performance.

Only two Phils reached bases — on singles by Greg Luzinski in the second inning and Larry Bowa in the seventh — and both of them were erased by double plays.

But Hooton couldn't find the plate after McCarver's hit. He issued back-to-back walks to Dave Cash and Ollie Brown to load the bases. Mike Schmidt followed with a sharp single to left to score McCarver and Cash to make it 3-2.

That was it for Hooton.

Hough came on to face Luzinski but he couldn't find the plate and walked the powerful outfielder on four pitches to again load the bases.

Now it was up to Allen.

Hough quickly got two strikes on him to take command and Allen followed with the ground ball to shortstop Bill Russell for an easy force play.

"I can't figure out how I could go along so well and then get into so much trouble with just one more out to go," Hooton said.

"I thought the game was over and I guess I let down a little after it was ruled a double," the pitcher said.

Hooton owns the Phils. Wednesday's win was his sixth straight over them in a string dating back to 1974. His one major-league no-hitter was over the Phils in 1972 when Hooton pitched for the Chicago Cubs.

It's also obvious Dodger Manager Walt Alston is going to Hough more in tight situations rather than Mike Marshall.

"It felt good to be called," Hough said after picking up his second save to go with seven victories. "It means Alston must have confidence in me to get the big out."

The Dodgers belted out 10 hits off loser Jim Lonborg, who suffered his second straight loss after eight consecutive wins.

Russell led the Dodger attack with three hits including a triple in the fourth inning to drive in Yeager, who had doubled.

Los Angeles' first run came across in the third when Davey Lopes scored after he singled and shortstop Bowa let a grounder by Ron Cey get through him for an error.

The Dodgers added an insurance tally in the sixth when Russell singled, Hooton sacrificed and Lopes singled.

DODGER DATA — The four-game series ends tonight with Doug Rau (5-3) facing Steve Carlton (5-3). Montreal comes in for three games over the weekend to complete the long homestand.

Wednesday's crowd of 27,794 put the Dodgers over the million mark in home attendance after only 29 dates.

Seven more go in draft

Seven more valley baseball players were drafted by professional teams Wednesday.

Four of them, outfielder-pitcher Ron Roenicke of Mt. San Antonio College, pitchers Mike Walters and Mike Coppess of Chaffey College and first baseman Dave Hostetler of Citrus College all were taken in the secondary phase. That consists of players who had been drafted previously but had not signed.

Picked when the regular phase of the draft resumed (the teams had gone through 15 rounds Tuesday) were pitcher Bruce MacPherson of Cal Poly, second baseman Brian Francisco of Ontario from UC Riverside, and first baseman Mark Bumstead of La Verne from Cal State Northridge.

Roenicke, drafted as a switch-hitting outfielder by the Atlanta Braves, batted .356 for MSAC and set a team record with 10 triples. He was an All-South Coast Conference selection both years at MSAC and had signed a letter of intent for UCLA. His brother, Gary, was just called up by the Montreal Expos from the minor leagues. Roenicke was taken in the second round of the secondary phase and had been previously drafted by the Detroit Tigers.

Walters also was picked in the second round. He was drafted by the Dodgers for the second time and also had been previously selected by Detroit.

A graduate of Alta Loma High, Walters compiled a 5-5 record for the Panthers this year with a 3.47 earned run average. At Alta Loma, he was honorable mention All-Hacienda League.

Coppess, from Chino, was drafted in the third round of the secondary phase by the New York Mets for the second time. He had been previously drafted by both the Mets and San Diego Padres.

At Chaffey, he posted a 3-5 mark this year with a fine 2.50 earned run average. He was only a freshman.

Hostetler was taken by the Cleveland Indians in the sixth round of the secondary phase. He had previously been drafted twice by the San Francisco Giants.

At Citrus, the 6-3, 215-pounder batted .340 with 10 home runs and 55 runs batted in. He set Citrus College career records in most appearances (.371), most hits (103), runs batted in (93), most home runs (18) and most extra base hits (18). He set season records of most runs batted in (55) and most home runs (10). He set a single game record of eight runs batted in.

MacPherson, ace of Cal Poly's NCAA Division II national champions, was a 21st round choice of the Minnesota Twins. For Poly, MacPherson posted a 12-7 season record and was 2-0 in the just-completed playoffs. His ERA was an excellent 2.27.

Francisco was picked by the Detroit Tigers in the 28th round. At UCR, he batted .374 in 36 games, stole 14 bases, scored 30 runs and batted in 24. He was All-CCAA utility player.

Bumstead was drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals in the 28th round. At CSN, he batted .328 in 52 games, and batted in 50 runs with 15 doubles, two triples and eight home runs. He was All-CCAA at first base.

Martin only hears Yanks beat Halos

NEW YORK (AP) — Hello, Billy, well hello, Billy, it's so nice to see you back where you belong—in the clubhouse before the game is over.

Billy Martin, New York's fiery manager, is really heating up again. He reached the boiling point Wednesday night— then cooled off in the Yankees' clubhouse for the final six innings of their 4-3 victory over California.

He was thumbed for the first time this season by Larry McCoy after taking exception to the first base umpire's out call, a close call on Mickey Rivers' grounder to short.

If McCoy had lowered his palms instead of raising his thumb on the play, the Yanks would've had a run. Instead, he had Martin on his hands—or, more precisely, his legs.

According to McCoy, Martin stormed out to first, shouted a few words relating to McCoy's family tree, then threw his hat and kicked the ump in the shins a couple of times.

Exit Billy Martin.

And five innings later, exit Elston Howard, the Yanks' first base coach, for disputing another close call.

"Billy came out, used an obscenity and threw his hat," McCoy said later. "Either deserved ejection. I'm not sure which one I threw him out for.

"He questioned my heritage. In my report I'm going to tell exactly what happened. I consider kicking me in the shins twice, which he did, as serious.

"The call on Rivers was very close. I called it like I saw it. If there were 10 calls like that, there would probably be 10 arguments."

Even Gabe Paul, president of the Yanks, got into the Martin-McCoy feud. "He didn't make contact," Paul said of Martin's kicks, displaying a photo of the incident. "The picture shows he just kicked dirt."

AAU finals good preview

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Virtually all the 1975 champions are back to defend the titles they won a year ago but this 1976 AAU championship track and field meet has more at stake: it's a preview of the Olympic Trials just a week away.

And most of the athletes realize the importance of gaining the upper hand psychologically by winning a national title just days before the U.S. team will be determined.

A slew of present or former world record holders are in the meet: shot putters Al Feuerbach and Terry Albritton; high jumper Dwight Stones; sprinter Steve Williams, discus throwers Mac Wilkins and John Powell; pole vaulters Earl Bell and Dan Ripley.

For the first time, the women's national meet is being held on the same track as the men's meet, making for a doubly interesting show. The women stars here include javelin thrower Kathy Schmidt, distance runners Francie Larrieu and Jan Merrill; high jumper Joni Huntley and sprinter Rosalyn Bryant.

It'll be a hectic three days with 33 final events. And there are no finals today, only trial heats for the runners and qualifications in the field events. The first final "running" event, in the women's 5,000-meter walk, comes up Friday afternoon.

This being an Olympic year, some who were lightly regarded when the season began have emerged as the people to beat for an Olympic berth, and in this meet before a large crowd at UCLA's Drake Stadium the pressure will be on to prove they should be top-rated.

Among this group are Tom McLean, Ken Randle, Ed Moses, Mike Winsor, and Quintin Wheeler.

McLean, one of America's best but least-known half milers the past two years, has now graduated from Bucknell but not before winning the NCAA 800. His best time of 1:45.3 is one of the fastest ever recorded by an American.

Randle captured the NCAA 400 title and, with his 44.99 time, has stamped himself the man to beat here.

Moses and Wheeler are the new upstarts in the 400 intermediate hurdles, in which old pros Ralph Mann and Jim Bolding figure to battle for victory much as they did a year ago.

Moses, the Morehouse State flash, has run a rapid 48.8 and Wheeler a 48.55 in winning the NCAA title for San Diego State. Mann won the 1975 hurdles in 48.74 for an AAU meet record.

Winsor is the freshman from Central Michigan who nearly beat Stones in the high jump at the NCAA meet, forcing Stones to set a world record of 7-7 to win. Winsor's 7-5 is one of the best marks ever by an American.

None of the women entered in this meet holds a world record, yet some fast times are expected in the sprints and distance races, especially in the 1,500 where Miss Larrieu and Miss Merrill will meet for the first time outdoors this season.

Abernathy honored

Gene Abernathy of Pomona High has been voted that school's "Coach of the Year" by Pomona's coaches and athletic director.

Abernathy, who coaches track and cross country, was selected for the third straight year.

During the track season just completed, Abernathy's Red Devils went undefeated in league dual meets for the second consecutive year and went on to win the CIF 3-A championship.

Abernathy, a graduate of Mater Dei High in Santa Ana and Cal State Los Angeles, began teaching physical education and conditioning at Pomona High in 1969.

His dual meet record in four years as head track coach is 32-4.

Quotes

"They are using familiar gestapo tactics. They're trying to return the game to the old establishment. It's back to the dark ages. They're threatening to put boxing back in the doldrums." — Boxing promoter Don King, charging that Madison Square Garden was trying to "strong-arm" him and his office out of the boxing picture.

Messersmith has no-hitter thoughts

By Associated Press

Only last month, Andy Messersmith was worried about winning a game. Now he's thinking "no-hitter" with each start.

"Sure, I was thinking 'no-hitter' again," the Atlanta pitcher said Wednesday after shutting out the Chicago Cubs 2-0. "I always do. Why not?"

The celebrated free agent signed a million dollar contract with the Braves earlier in the year, but was unable to win a game until May 17. Since then, he's won four of five, including three shutouts.

In his last appearance, he came within two outs of a no-hitter against Montreal and finished with a one-hit beauty. On Wednesday, he only allowed three hits, one of them a bunt single in the ninth.

"Right now I'm throwing as good as I ever did and just can't pitch any better," said Messersmith, who improved his record to 4-5.

Chicago Manager Jim Marshall was apt to agree after watching the beefy right-hander turn his Cubs into lambs.

"You've got to give Messersmith credit," said Marshall. "He kept the ball down all day. He didn't hang a curve all day and he kept my hitters off balance. He pitched a helluva ballgame."

Messersmith's second straight strong performance spoiled the National League debut of veteran right-hander Joe Coleman and handed the Cubs their sixth straight loss. Catcher Steve Swisher got two hits off Messersmith, who faced three batters over the minimum of 27. Messersmith walked one and struck out six.

It's a Racquet

PATIENCE BEGETS EXCELLENCE. Many have said it, the San Jose Hills Racquet Club has demonstrated it. The club's Team One wrapped up the spring Foothill League championship Sunday by defeating a hosting Monterey Park contingent, 10-1. By winding up the season with a perfect 7-0 record, the local group ended a long drought. It was San Jose Hills' first title in its dozen or so years of league action.

"We really wanted to win it this year and the whole team worked hard to do it," said Jeannine Neuer, team captain and president of the Mt. San Antonio College-based club. "And we wanted to win the last match big, which we did."

The team's singles line-up clinched Sunday's match early with a clean sweep. Helen Wang and Mrs. Neuer won the women's contests and the men's winners were Craig Orr, Lou De La Vega, Dave Stahl, Rob Stabo and Jack Hamm. Orr and Rob Stahl added a point in men's doubles and Mona Wolfe and Dave Stahl had a victory in the mixed. Mrs. Wang and De La Vega were awarded a win by default.

Congratulations will carry on at least into July. The club will hold an awards banquet then at the Via Verde Country Club, to which all other league teams will be invited.

Arcadia settled for second place with a 6-5 conquest of the San Jose Hills Team Two Sunday at MSAC. The Arcadians' only loss in their seven outings was to Team One - a meet which as it turned out, was to decide the championship.

In sagging to a 3-4 final season's record Team Two struggled through its third cardiac contest. Twice before, the team had won matches that went down to the last mixed doubles clash and a final, deuce set. This time, it lost. Ron and Diane Daniels headed the local group's effort with victories in singles and as mised doubles partners. Other San Jose Hills point winners were Judy Seay and Pete Chavis in singles.

Via Verde Country Club's team, meanwhile, finished with a winning, 4-3 mark by downing the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, 7-4. Via Verde winners at Pasadena were Dave Moore, Tom Li and Lilian Schabarum in singles, plus the doubles teams of Moore and Dave Humphrey Larry Dodd and Gary Cox, Mrs. Schabarum and Clif O'Grain and Li and Wendy O'Grain.

ANOTHER HURRAH FOR CLAREMONT HIGH: Mark Alba, one of the leading performers with this year's San Antonio League champs, won the top men's singles title in the La Verne Jaycees tournament Sunday. He beat Harry Muradian in the B finals, 6-1, 7-5.

Hilda Gonzales claimed the women's crown with a 6-2, 6-4 finals triumph over Gloria Jones. There were two lower levels of men's competition, David Valle outlasting Joe Higgins, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, in the C finals and Butch Gadbury topping Scott Nichols, 6-2, 6-2, in the D wind-up. In all, 38 players entered the singles action, and now the other half of the event comes up this weekend. Doubles play will begin Saturday at the La Verne College courts, with semi-finals and finals matches scheduled for Sunday at Las Flores Park.

THEY'RE WORKING OUT plans for a celebrity tournament in August at the Valley Racquet Club. The exact date hasn't been set — and no celebrities have been named — but an organizational meeting was held at the club Wednesday night to get the project in motion.

Last week's winners at the Indian Hill Boulevard facility included Joe Reynolds and Ken Tibbetts in a couple of "'round the world" eliminations and Steve Hayes and Marion Ritchie in Saturday's singles tournament (Leonard Smith and Yvonne Hayes runners-up in the latter). Steve and Yvonne Hayes will be hosts for tonight's "mixed-up doubles" at the club.

New coaches join Panther staff

The Chaffey College Athletic Department has announced the addition of three new football coaches to serve under new head mentor Mike Merandi. They are Larry Korpitz, Tim Rhames, and Greg Newhouse. Returning from last year's staff will be Pete Merandi and Lou Farrar.

Korpitz formerly coached at the Unversity of New Mexico where he served as head football scout and assistant coach. Previously, Korpitz was an assistant coach at Eldorado High School. Korpitz played football and graduated from the University of New Mexico where he received his B.S. in business education. He is currently working on an M.A. in physical education.

Rhames will graduate from USC in June, receiving a B.A. in physical education. Rhames, who will instruct the defensive line, lettered four years in football and basketball at San Joaquin Memorial High School in Fresno. Rhames played three years for the Trojans on the varsity level and was a starter at middle guard and tackle this past season. Rhames received a honorable mention All-American honors this year.

Newhouse will handle the defensive secondary at Chaffey. A graduate of the University of Nevada, Reno, Newhouse will graduate this June with a B.S. in physical education and a teaching credential. Newhouse previously coached at Reno as a graduate assistant of defensive backs and receivers this spring, and was a defensive back coach in the fall.

Cheetahs excel in Texas

EL PASO, Texas — The Southern California Cheetahs girls track club captured several first-place medals recently at a track meet here.

Dawn Peters and Barney Carral led the Cheetahs in the 14-15-year-old division by winning two individual events each. Peters won the 100 in 11.1 seconds and the long jump at 18 feet, 6 inches while Carral took the 440 in 58.0 and the 880 in 2:20.2. Peters also ran on the winning 440 relay and 880 medley relay teams.

Tracy McMurray, who also ran on both those winning relay teams, won the 300-meter hurdles and was runnerup in the long jump while Della Equipilag ran second in both the 440 and 880.

In the 12-13 bracket, Lisa Peters won the 440 and the high jump and helped the 880 medley relay foursome win while Melanie Johnson won the javelin and took second in the 440, Jamie Anderson won the shot put and ran third in the 200-meter hurdles and Danielle Mojica won the mile.

The Cheetahs will attend the women's AAU nationals at UCLA this weekend.

Post 330 falls

West Covina's American Legion baseball team broke a 3-3 tie with two unearned runs in the bottom of the sixth inning and went on to defeat La Verne Post 330 Wednesday, 6-4.

Those two runs, built on four hits, an error and a wild pitch, snapped La Verne's nine-game winning streak and left Post 330 with an 11-3 record for the summer. Starter Curt Burkhart absorbed his first loss against four wins.

West Covina's Mike Pill went all the way with a five-hitter, fanning eight and walking three. Teammate Mark Bridgewater collected a double, two singles and an RBI in four trips.

Skyhawks win 1-0

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Jim Rolland's goal in the 69th minute of play carried the Los Angeles Shykawks to a 1-0 victory over the New York Apollos in an American Soccer League game Wednesday night.

The goal, set up by Jim Hinch, helped back the net-minding of Brian Parkinson and hand the defending ASL champions only the third loss at home in their six-year history.

The Apollos outshot the Skyhawks, 23-19, but Parkinson, the ASL's leading goalie, held on for his fifth shutout this season.

Arguello 2-1 choice

INGLEWOOD — Alexis Arguello, called one of the best featherweight champions of all time, has opened as a 2-1 choice to successfully defend his title against the challenge of Salvador Torres.

They meet in a 15-rounder at The Forum, June 19.

The tall, hard-hitting Nicaraguan will be putting his championship on the line for the fourth time. Areguello has knocked out Lionel Hernandez, Rogberto Riasco and Royal Kobayhasi in prior title defenses.

Torres, 23-year-old ex truck driver from Guadalajara has plenty of support for an upset victory. He has a relentless style and takes a good punch.

Both champion and challenger are training daily at the Main Street Gym in downtown Los Angeles.

The league-leading Tigers and second-place Angels split a pair of exciting games during the week to keep the league a tight race.

The Athletics kept pace with a big win over the Twins 14-9, behind the pitching and hitting of the McGwire brothers. Mark went 3-for-3 with one homer while Bobby went 3-for-4 with two home runs, one a GRAND SLAM and drove in seven RBI's. Mike Lopez 1 homer, George Saelzler 3-for-4 and two spectacular catches by Kirby Lane in deep center field assured the win for the Athletics.

Steve Mason went 4-for-4 and Tim Hoddie 3-for-4 for the losing Twins.

The Orioles Steve DeBiasi hit two homers. Chris Steevens one and Marty Shields hit two, his second one proving to be the winning run in a tight win over the Royals, 9-8, to back up the fine pitching of Bobby Melendrez.

Other home runs were hit during the week by Jeff Weiss, Tigers, David Fleming, Royals, Ken Wilson, Red Sox and two homers by Mike Blay for the Angels as he drove in seven RBI's to lead his team over the Tigers 10-8. Winning pitchers were Pat Ochoa, Tigers, Paul Schilck, Angels, Marty Shields, Orioles, Trac Sims, Twins and Ralph Felix picked up two wins for the Yankees.

In the Varsity division, Dean Uribe went all six innings, striking out 12 while going 4-for-4 at the plate with Juan Gamboa and Mark Calderon combing for six timely hits as the Stars beat the Solons 17-5. TIGHT SQUEEZE — Richard Petty (No. 43) is in tight squeeze in turn with Burbank's Chuck Wahl at Riverside in January race. Petty will be running Sunday in the "400."

DYNAMIC DUO — David Pearson (No. 21) and Bobby Allison jockey for position in action at Riverside Raceway. They'll be dueling again Sunday in annual Riverside 400.

Practice starts for '400'

Auto racing

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — The best field of stock cars and drivers ever to perform at Riverside International Raceway in June were slated to begin practice runs today for Sunday's $124,925 Riverside 400 NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National.

It will mark the first summer appearance of NASCAR's super speedway king, David Pearson, in the Purolator Mercury. Pearson won the last stock car race held here, the Winston Western 500 in January.

He will face Richard Petty, Bobby Allison, Cale Yarborough, Buddy Baker, Benny Parsons, Dave Marcis, Darrell Waltrip, Ray Elder, Jimmy Insolo and other top stock car drivers who normally bypass the second road race of the long NASCAR season.

Interest in the Riverside event is heightened by the historic nature of stock car racing's first metric distance event. Pearson and foes will race 400 kilometers instead of the customary 400 miles, a distance that approximates 249 miles and pays a record (for Riverside) $501.90 per racing mile.

The shortened event is expected to be an improvement for spectators, as the "pacing" aspect of the endurance-type race is all but eliminated. The 400 is expected to be a flat-out sprint from green to checkered flag.

As Richard Petty, four time Riverside winner, puts it: "We'll have to go after that cat up front right away instead of waitin' to see what he does. If we don't we may not get another chance."

Qualifying for the first 15 positions in the 35-car field will be held Friday, and the rest of the 18 rows of starters will be filled on Saturday.

Sunday's racing program will actually be a double-header, as the companion event will be the $10,725 California 150 NASCAR Late Model Sportsman stock car road race. Like the main event, the California 150 will be contested at the metric distance, which in its case is just shy of 95 miles.

Tickets remain on sale at Riverside International Raceway box office, all Ticketron, Wallichs Music City Stores and Liberty Agencies.

Veteran Weil to race in Carlsbad Hang Ten Moto

CARLSBAD — Although it has been more than a decade since someone over 30 years of age has won a world championship, Germany's 36-year-old Adolf Weil is making a great run for the 500cc motocross title this year.

Weil, one of the world class riders entered in the Hang Ten U.S. Motocross Grand Prix to be held June 20 at Carlsbad Raceway, is leading the point race and is a definite threat to upset four-time world champ Roger DeCoster of Belgium.

Weil captured the lead by finishing first and seventh in a pair of motos last Sunday in the Austrian Grand Prix at Sittendorf, not far from the earthquake disaster area in Italy.

In the standings Weil leads with 77 points after five of the 12 world championship races. DeCoster is second with 75 and Wolsink, the dentist from Holland, is third with 64.

Weil, an anachronism who is the exception proving the rule that motocross racing is a young man's sport, mounts the first threat to win a world championship since Jeff Smith did it in 1964 and 1965 on a BSA.

Teammate Willy Bauer of Germany won the Carlsbad race in 1973, but last season — as the small Maico factory in Germany was boycotting the 500cc circuit — Bauer and Weil competed on the 250cc championship trail.

"Now Weil and Bauer are back together in the more prestigious series," Trippe said, "and Ake Jonsson of Sweden, who had quit Maico for Yamaha, is back with his old teammates again. They make a formidable team, but the main hopes of Maico are pinned on Weil."

The Maico challenge to Suzuki at Carlsbad is a new dimension in world championship motocross, and it will be the "grand old man" who is the most threat of all.

Tickets remain on sale for the Hang Ten U.S. Grand Prix at all Ticketron, Liberty-Wallichs and Mutual Agencies.

Umpires attacked by Wills

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The much-maligned baseball umpire gets his lumps again in a new book by former star shortstop Maury Wills, who declared:

"Give or take a few, one-third of all the umpires in the National League are incompetent."

Now a commentator for NBC Sports, Wills has written "How to Steal a Pennant" (Putnam's, $8.95) with Don Freeman, TV editor of the San Diego Union. The onetime Los Angeles Dodgers ace base-stealer adds that the National League umpires are "not dishonest or faulty of vision or prejudiced—but incompetent, lacking in talent, ability, savvy."

The problem, says Wills, lies in the "cronyism and politics in selecting umpires.

"You have umpires who know a few basics," he writes, "but they aren't really equipped with the necessary skills, and they are the ones, if you look closely, who are always out of position to judge a play. They are the ones who make erratic calls. They are the ones who let a game slip out of control...

"The big challenge lies at home plate, to stay in there behind the catcher. If you get a camera closeup, you see many an umpire flinch when the ball hits the catcher's glove. Ever so slightly, the umpire will turn his head as he flinches, and his line of vision is altered, and he blows the call."

Wills said he wasn't accusing the umpires of cowardice; they are not well enough protected from being hit by bullet-like pitches and flying bats. He wondered why National League umpires don't have the more protective balloon-type chest protectors of the American League.

The former shortstop admitted that he developed techniques to out-psyche umpires in his playing days.

"I've had infielders make a tag at me and miss me by a fraction of an inch, and the umpire was in a position where there's no way possible for him to see it," said Wills. "But he'd call me safe because I'd stolen so many bases."

Wills observed that the pennant-winning Dodgers of his era were similar to the present-day Oakland A's in more ways than winning: "(The Dodgers) were a team of tigers, hell raisers and pranksters. We were a team of braggarts—we were good and we knew it—and we had our jealousies and feuds and fights." But such matters were kept in the family.

Schinkel rehired

MONTREAL (AP) — The Pittsburgh Penguins announced Wednesday that Ken Schinkel will return next season as coach of the National Hockey League club.

"We are very happy with the job done by Schinkel," said Penguins General Manager Wren Blair, who was in Montreal attending NHL meetings.

"And although he took the job reluctantly at the time, he has developed a strong feeling about continuing on as coach."

Schinkel, a former Penguins player, took over the team in the middle of the 1975-76 season and compiled a 20-10-17 record the rest of the way. Pittsburgh finished in third place in the NHL's Norris Division, but was eliminated in the first round of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

It was Schinkel's second stint as coach. In February, 1974, he was named to replace Red Kelly, who was fired. Schinkel was replaced in the middle of the following season by Marc Boileau.

Schinkel, who had been serving as director of player personnel, returned as coach when Boileau was fired on Jan. 17, 1976.

Details of his new contract were not disclosed. Blair said, however, that Schinkel has been guaranteed a position with the club if a coaching change is made.

Crowds up in baseball

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball attendance is up 1.1 million over the same period last year, it was announced Wednesday.

Through Sunday's games, the 24 major league clubs had played before 9,635,209 fans, an increase of 13 per cent over one year ago, based on an equal number of playing dates for the two seasons.

Seventeen teams had increased attendance, headed by the Boston Red Sox, whose attendance is up by 244,767. The New York Yankees, Philadelphia Phillies, Cincinnati Reds, Atlanta Braves, Chicago White Sox and Kansas City Royals are each up more than 100,000.

Mehta to lead groups

Zubin Mehta will combine his two orchestras, the Israel Philharmonic and the Los Angeles Philharmonic, into one giant group for a performance of Berlioz' "Symphonie Fantastique" in the Hollywood Bowl Aug. 25. The 210-piece orchestra is the size Berlioz scored the symphony for.

Also on the program will be soprano Beverly Sills, singing arias from "La Traviata," "The Barber of Seville" and "Lucia di Lammermoor."

The occasion is a benefit for the Los Angeles Philharmonic's Pension Fund. (Mehta is musical adviser for the Israel Philharmonic as well as conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic.)

Donovan set for the Shrine

Singer-songwriter Donovan and young singing star Phoebe Snow will give a benefit concert at 8 p.m. July 8 in Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles.

Donovan, whose career soared in the '60s has continued to write and record his unique lyrics and music and remains beloved to his fans both in this country and internationally. He has just produced a new album "Slow Down World" for Epic Records and starts a worldwide tour with this concert.

Miss Snow, like Donovan, writes most of what she sings. She recently released an album, "Second Childhood" for Columbia Records. She has made few personal appearances since the birth of her daughter last December.

Gino D'Auri, master flamenco guitarist, will also appear on the program. He has recently performed in solo concerts here and in Las Vegas.

Proceeds from the concert go to the Araya Foundation, a new, non-profit organization formed for the study and advancement of the higher arts, sciences and philosophies.

Tickets, available at all Mutual ticket agencies and at the Shrine box office, are $6.50, $7.50 and $8.50.

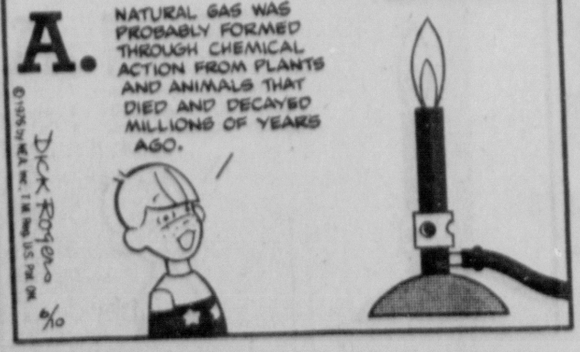
Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHERE DOES NATURAL GAS COME FROM?"

SUSAN MACFARLAND
EAST ALTON, IL

A. NATURAL GAS WAS PROBABLY FORMED THROUGH CHEMICAL ACTION FROM PLANTS AND ANIMALS THAT DIED AND DECAYED MILLIONS OF YEARS AGO.



Natural gas is a fuel formed naturally in the earth. Its clean, blue flame is used in millions of homes for cooking and heating. It is also used in many important ways in industries.

This gas is called natural gas to set it apart from the gas made by man. Natural gas was probably formed from countless numbers of plants and animals that lived and died many millions of years ago.

The decaying matter was buried benath the earth's surface, where it slowly changed through chemical action into natural gas.

Today, well-drillers find natural gas stored in sands and rocky layers far underground. It is often found in ground that also contains oil.

After the natural gas is brought to the surface, it is cleaned. Great pipeline systems carry the dry gas from its source to far-distant communities.

Natural gas has no odor of its own, but an artificial odor is added to warn people of a leak in a gas pipe.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Arab world's in disarray over Lebanese civil war

By NICK LUDINGTON
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The Arab world is in disarray, torn by the Lebanese civil war, ideological rivalry and disputes over policy in confronting Israel.

Arab affairs analysts, usually as ready with glib explanations for obscure events as pro football coaches diagramming a play, are mostly stunned into silence or admissions of confusion.

"Developments on the Arab scene moved very fast last week," was the limp conclusion of the "Arab World," an Arab press review.

Among those fast-moving developments is the movement of 9,000 Syrian troops into Lebanon to halt the fierce Moslem-Christian fighting; the extension by Syria and Israel of the United Nations mandate for a peacekeeping force on the Golan Heights, and the formation of a "rejection front" of radical anti-Israeli Arab states aligned against the more moderate Egypt.

At the center of the several whirlpools of political and military conflict is Syria, a leftist Moslem state which suddenly finds itself condemned by its leftist Moslem allies and praised by rightists, Christians and the United States.

The reversal comes mainly over Syria's involvement in the Lebanese civil war. One Israeli senior military officer remarked that Syrian President Hafez Assad was "caught in a Vietnam-style nutcracker" over Lebanon.

Assad is reluctant to see a radical leftist state established on his flank as the probable result of a Moslem leftist victory over the Christians in Lebanon.

He would like to see the two sides continue to share the government. Presently, Lebanese law provides for a Christian president and a Moslem prime minister, an arrangement that failed to prevent the civil war.

To further his goal, Assad first set up an arms embargo to stop the leftists from getting supplies to press their increasingly successful assault on the Christians, who had controlled the country for nearly 30 years.

He also applied strong political pressure on the leftists and eventually dispatched several thousand Syrian troops and Syrian-controlled Saiqa guerrillas to Lebanon to act as "buffer forces."

However, he failed to stop the fighting and finally on Tuesday sent in an estimated 9,000 troops and some 200 tanks.

The Israeli officer observed that Assad knew "that additional escalation (in Lebanon) will threaten his power base at home. This whole situation may cause Assad to lose his office."

Syria's intervention brought sharp condemnation from the Lebanese Moslem leftists, the Palestinian guerrillas fighting on the leftist side and other Arab states.

Apparently seeking support for its intervention, Assad last month agreed to begin reconciliation talks with Egypt. The two countries had split over Egypt's disengagement agreement with Israel.

Those talks broke down before they could get under way, but just Syria's agreement to hold them brought the radical states of Libya, Iraq and Algeria to Damascus to try to pull Syria back into their camp.

Those countries were among several forming a "rejection front" last month. The group refuses any negotiations with Israel on settling the Arab-Israeli conflict and opposes Egypt and the more moderate Arab states.

Syria has criticized Egypt sharply for the disengagement agreement, but last week readily agreed to allow the U.N. peacekeeping force to remain on the occupied Golan Heights, separating the Syrian and Israeli forces.

In addition to the Syria-Egypt split, Damascus has been at odds with the Palestinians since Assad began intervening in Lebanon.

Palestinian guerrillas led by Yasir Arafat fear that if Syria gets a firm hold on Lebanon it will also try to control them in their continuing war against Israel. Syria has been reportedly trying to undermine Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization's leadership in favor of its own Saiqa Palestinian guerrilla group.

Syria is also in a bitter quarrel with Iraq over Euphrates River waters and fees for Iraqi oil being carried across Syria.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived in Damascus on Tuesday as part of a Mideast tour. He was expected to receive a note from the Palestine Liberation Organization given to Soviet Ambassador Alexander Soldatov on Tuesday.

The note reportedly protests the Syrian invasion and asks for Kosygin's help in trying to keep Assad out of Lebanon.

An Israeli source said the Syrian invasion "has not yet tipped the scales" toward Israeli intervention.

New grape wine is developed

DAVIS (AP) — A new wine grape said to be more flavorful than cabernet sauvignon has been developed by the University of California here.

The university reported Tuesday that the first crop of the new variety, dubbed "carmine," will be harvested in about four years from plantings near Santa Barbara and Monterey.

"Carmine" was developed over a period of 37 years by Harold P. Olmo, a professor of viticulture who also developed "ruby cabernet" and several other grape varieties.

He said "carmine" is not only more flavorful than cabernet sauvignon, but also bears at least 50 per cent more fruit, is more resistant to disease, ripens 10 days earlier, and can be harvested by machine.

The first cross leading to "carmine" was of cabarnet sauvignon and carignane in about 1939. The result was later crossed with merlot.

Devil's Hole pupfish saved by Supreme Court opinion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has struck a blow for the Devil's Hole pupfish.

In an unanimous opinion, the court ruled Monday that the government has the right to control pumping that it says is threatening the rare species of wildlife with extinction.

The decision was a defeat for Western states which intervened in the case to protect their right to control use of underground water.

The Devil's Hole pupfish is a species less than an inch long which is believed to have lived for at least 30,000 years in a 200-foot deep limestone pool in Death Valley in Nevada. It survives nowhere else in the world. The pupfish population in the pool ranges from 200 to 800 at different times of the year.

The fish depend for their food supply on blue-green algae which grow on a sloping ledge measuring eight by 18 feet on one side of the pool. The dimensions of the pool are 10 by 65 feet.

In 1968, Francis and Marilyn Cappaert, owners of a 12,000-acre cattle ranch adjacent to Death Valley National Monument, started pumping irrigation water from deep wells. The pumping drew down the water level in the pool so that by 1972, about 60 per cent of the sloping ledge was exposed.

In August, 1971, the government filed suit against the Cappaerts, claiming the right to control pumping of the water under a proclamation by the late President Harry S Truman in 1952 which set aside Devil's Hole as part of Death Valley National Monument.

The high court agreed with the government's contention that in withdrawing land from general public use for such a purpose it also has the power to set aside the ground water. The opinion was written by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

The high court decision upheld an order by U.S. District Judge Roger D. Foley of Las Vegas, Nev., ordering the Cappaerts to limit their pumping so that the water would not drop more than three feet below a copper washer placed on the wall of the pool in 1962 to mark the water level. If the water dropped more than three feet, Foley found, the survival of the pupfish would be endangered.

The Cappaerts and the state of Nevada appealed to the Supreme Court from a ruling of the U.S. Circuit Court in San Francisco upholding Foley's action. Briefs in support of the ranch owners were filed by California, Colorado, North Dakota, Washington, Arizona, Hawaii, Idaho, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Utah and Wyoming.

Officials of these states said the decision threatened the rights of states in arid areas of the West to control vital water supplies.

The Devil's Hole pupfish is one of nearly two dozen original species of pupfish, of which at least five from the Death Valley area are thought to be extinct. The fish are named for a puppy-like manner of leaping and darting about. In prehistoric America they thrived in a lake more than 600 feet deep which covered what is now Death Valley.

Girl Scouting is for everyone

READY FOR INVESTITURE — Mrs. John B. Cobb lights a candle at investiture ceremony for new Girl Scout troop at Pilgrim Place as Mrs. Galen Russell, center, and Mrs. Sanford Newton, president of Spanish Trails Girl Scout Council watch.

The Girl Scout Investiture Ceremony was simple yet symbolic for the five who had just promised to abide by the Girl Scout Laws on Monday. Somehow the words seemed especially significant — "On my honor, I will try: To serve God, my country and mankind . . . I will do my best . . . to help where I am needed . . . to protect and improve the world around me . . ."

The newly invested Scouts have literally carried out these words in their lives of Christian service around the world. The scouts, Theodora Cobb, Eva Mansen, Peggy Mammaker, Edith Husted, together with troop leader, Buddy Russell, are all silver-haired, active women, who come together now with others to form the first Senior Citizens Girl Scout Troop outside the state of Ohio. They claim several such troops. In Spanish Trails Girl Scout Council, headquartered in Pomona, there's an aura of excitement and pride over the new troop's formation. The Claremont Neighborhood of the Council where the troop is located shares this pride.

The very important women involved are all residents or friends of Pilgrim Place, a Christian retirement community located in the center of Claremont.

A peek into the past of Pilgrim Place tells how the people, the place and Girl Scouting have all come together to make the present possible.

For sixty years Pilgrim Place in Claremont has been a rich and rewarding experience for some 300 residents, for the community and for all who come in contact with it. It is a unique Christian retirement community. Unique in that it's ecumenical and self-sustaining. The 300 prestigious persons who call Pilgrim Place home has given at least 20, and as many as 43 years, in professional service to God and his children, in a myriad of circumstances, across the nation and in 25 countries of the world.

Utilizing their own creativity and expertise, the residents themselves organize activities and help provide services to Pilgrim Place, to churches, school systems, youth organizations, committees, governing boards and to individuals. The Pilgrims are preachers, teachers, speakers, poets, authors, artists, musicians, organizers and heart-reachers. They daily witness to the warmth and wealth of the human heart.

It was into this stimulating setting of unparalleled potential a newly retired couple arrived last summer. Hardly had Mrs. Galen (Buddy) Russell unpacked before she made her first call to Spanish Trails Girl Scout Council to greet her long-time friend, Barbara Powers, executive director. Wherever the Rev. and Mrs. Russell have lived, in this country or in Japan, Buddy has continued her active role in Girl Scouting. If no troop existed for her involvement, she very capably organized one.

Buddy's continuous, creative and exciting love affair with Girl Scouting dates back to 1919. During that period she served as one-aide-de-camp to General Pershing. She has been a paid Scout leader in settlement houses in New York City, a troop leader in Tokyo, and chairman of International Friendship on the Board of Girl Scouts in the Far East Command acting as liaison between Japanese and American Scout Troops. Buddy wears the very same World Association pin once worn by Lady Baden-Powell, wife of the founder of Boy Scouting, which had been presented to her as a gift. Lady Baden-Powell is the Chief Girl Guide of the World.

Buddy has tied together her education, church work and Girl Scouting into one beautiful bundle of enthusiasm for living. Within that kind of creative climate, Buddy got an idea. Why not, she reasoned, start a Senior Citizens Girl Scout Troop at Pilgrim Place, now her home.

Jody Berscheidt, Human Resources director of Spanish Trails Council, will serve as staff adviser to the very special new troop to be called the International Pilgrim Troop. Jody was invested also in the ceremony.

With no precedent previously set, the troop will write its own guidelines. Among program possibilities being considered are learning lots of knots for macrame, serving as advisers for international projects, badges and programs, counseling Girl Scouts for religious awards and sitting in with younger leaders to counsel and guide them toward more productive leadership. There may be some camping and working with young Brownie Scouts. A trip to the International Girl Scout House in Mexico is also contemplated.

Since the troop's first organizational meeting, troop members have held an afternoon picnic at La Casita, Claremont Girl Scout cabin, located near the foothills, participated in the Claremont Neighborhood leader luncheon held at United Methodist Church and are currently reviewing material on Girl Scout religious awards.

Others to take part in the International Pilgrim Troop are Margaret Flint, retired staff members of Spanish Trails Council, consultant; Ann Comstock of the Claremont Neighborhood of the Council, Elizabeth Baber and Eva Hansen who will work as consultants and Martha Frimand, press representative of Spanish Trails Council and member of the staff of Pilgrim Place.

Sibling jealousy

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I was one of four children and I never really got along well with my brothers or my sister. It took me 20 years to realize that I was extremely jealous of my brothers and wanted to be like them, and that I envied my sister's beauty. When I have children of my own, how can I teach them to love and respect each other without jealousy? — B.R.

Dear B.R.: I think you are very wise to prepare yourself now.

Everyone is susceptible to feelings of jealousy from time to time, but jealousy between siblings may be avoided if parents are careful to take certain steps.

First of all, the more you prepare your first-born child for the arrival of your second, and make him feel that the new baby is also a part of him, the better it will be for both children. A first-born child should never be made to feel displaced by the birth of a baby and you need to make certain from the very beginning that love, attention and care are dispensed as equally as possible.

You should also recognize from the start the special individuality of each child and the fewer preconceptions you have, the easier it will be to allow each child to fulfill his or her own potential. Above all, try to avoid forcing a rigid sexual role on children of either sex. Support your girls or boys in whatever they wish to do, as long as it isn't destructive. Boys are often envied by their sisters because parents give sons more freedom and privileges.

If your daughters are interested in sports, engineering, math, and your sons are interested in music or design, don't try to redirect them. Let each find his or her own way and allow each the opportunity to make and learn from mistakes. Discourage competition by showing that each excels in different ways and at different tasks.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I don't happen to believe in astrology but a friend who does constantly tells me that when a person was born has a great effect on his or her life. Is this all hogwash? Is there any relationship between when a person was born and what the future is going to bring? — P.R.

Dear P.R.: Our present and our future still rests primarily in ourselves, not in our stars or our birthdates. However, more than 1,600 men and women were given a battery of intelligence tests at Colorado State College and the results were then compared with information about the month and season of their births.

It was found that those born in the warmer months — March through August — tended to score higher on intelligence. Those born in the colder fall-winter birth months, September through February, tended to have lower test scores. The order of birth seasons, from most to least favorable test performance, was summer, spring, winter, fall.

In another study, it was found that peak birth seasons were found for certain occupations, and this occurred far beyond what would be expected by chance. For soldiers, midsummer to late autumn, for doctors, early summer to mid-autumn; the peak birth season for artists was late winter to spring and for musicians, late autumn to middle spring.

Don't be upset, however, whenever you were born, because there are many, many exception.

Research also indicates that infant health hazards vary widely according to season of birth. First-borns also have an advantage, no matter what season they're born. They tend to be more sensitive, serious and conscientious and more adult-oriented.
